THE
1959
LAWRENCIAN

Man's greatest blessing: "A sound mind in a manly body."

—Homer

Published by the students of Lawrence High School, Lawrence, New York

FOREWORD

THE ideals of the ancient Greek civilization have never been excelled. Their search for truth distinguished them from their neighbors, their ancestors, and many of their descendants. Out of this search evolved a culture and a civilization worthy of our close study. Materially we have made great progress but proportionate to the time that has elapsed, we have advanced little beyond their culture, their philosophy, and their democracy. Because the Greeks sought those things that we who are attempting to record the highlights of our education are still seeking, we are basing the record of our attempts and achievements on their culture, which is so inextricably a part of our own.

We are all Greeks; our laws, our literature, our arts have their root in Greece. But for Greece, Rome . . . would have spread no illumination with her arms and we might still be savages and idolators.

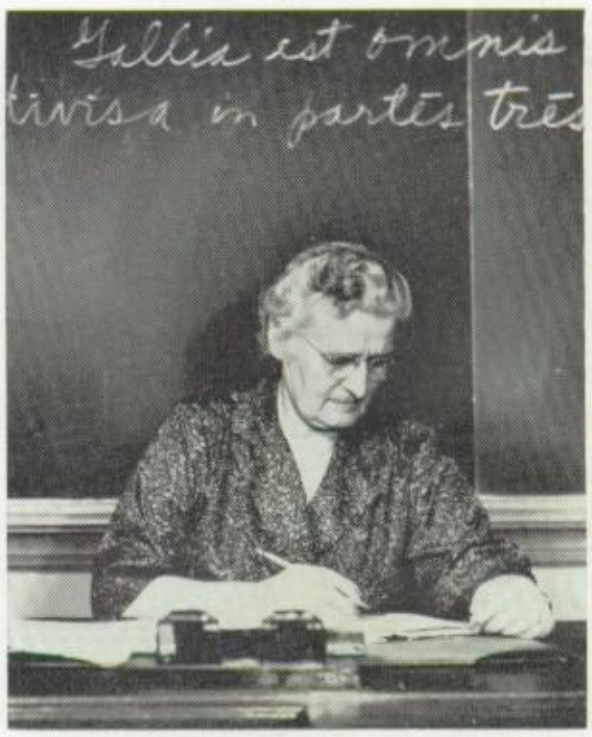
THANKS FOR A

MISS MABEL LEAVITT

FOR thirty-three years Miss Mabel Leavitt has been instilling the fundamentals of Latin in the students of Lawrence High School. For the past nine years she has served as Chairman of the Foreign Language Department. Throughout her career as a thorough and devoted teacher, Miss Leavitt has sponsored the National Honor Society, The Lawrencian and various language clubs at Lawrence. Retiring this year, she plans to live at her home in the Adirondacks near Lake Placid.

When asked how she felt about Lawrence, Miss Leavitt replied, "Lawrence has always realized the need and value of Latin and other foreign languages. Latin gives one a sense of perseverence and continuity of effort basic to one's high-school foundation."

In apprecation for the many things Miss Leavitt has given the students here at Lawrence we dedicate the 1959 Lawrencian to her.



JOB WELL DONE

MISS DOROTHY GRIFFITH

RETIRING this year after twenty-five years at Lawrence is Miss Dorothy Griffith, head of the Social Studies Department for the last fifteen years. Miss Griffith has done an excellent job in presenting various history courses, including one of the first "Problems of Democracy" courses on Long Island. Miss Griffith's future plans include travel, study and research in the fields which she has not yet found time to explore. In short Miss Griffith said, "I want to do what I want to do when I want to do it."

In replying to our query concerning her reactions to teaching at Lawrence, Miss Griffith answered, "Teaching is a partnership between the teacher and the student. If either partner fails to do his share education can't exist. Results are only achieved with mutual understanding, and student cooperation here has been marvelous."

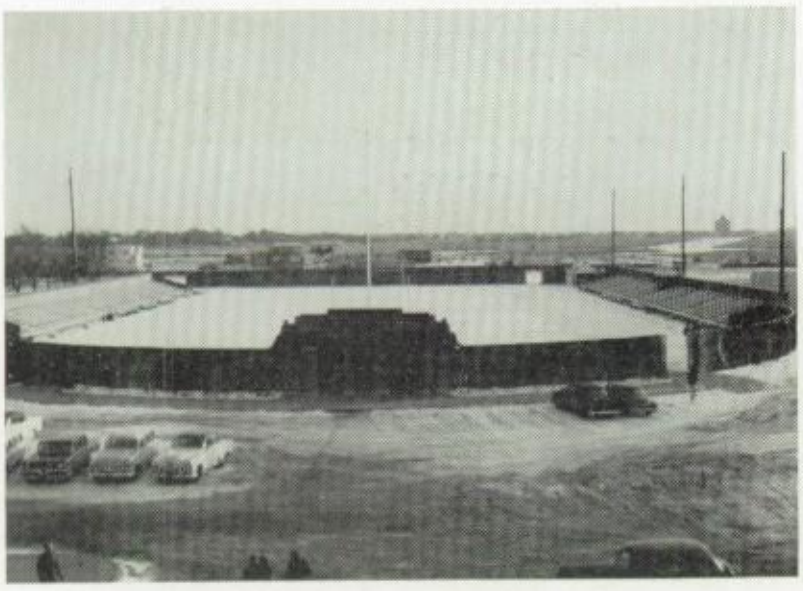
In recognition for her many years of service to the school and student body, we dedicate the 1959 Lawrencian to Miss Dorothy Griffith.

IN RETROSPECT

THIS year marks the end of Lawrence High School as a four year institution—an institution in existence in one form or another since 1893. Next year, to meet the demands of a growing population, District Fifteen's high school will once more occupy a new building and the present high school will become Lawrence V. Dodd Junior High School.

What a difference there will be between the new space-age high school and the turn-of-the-century one! First, and most striking, there is the difference in sheer size. The first graduating class in 1897 contained two students, Mary Horn and George W. Foren. At commencement this year 331 students will receive diplomas. The faculty has grown from four teachers who taught all subjects to a specialized teaching staff of 83. In 1900 the entire student body was the size of an average class today—thirty pupils. That first Lawrence High School, a small, wooden building located on Central Avenue, contained approximately fourteen rooms. This held not only the high school but a district grammar school as well. This building was replaced in 1913 by a larger brick structure (now Public School Number One) and that, in turn, was superseded by the present Lawrence High School which was constructed on Broadway in 1936.

And LHS hasn't changed merely in appearance and size, but in its curriculum as well. The student of 1900 could study such things as New York history, physical geography, botany, astronomy, zoology, physiology and hygiene, in addition to the basic subjects, history, English, mathematics, and languages. We, of the present Lawrence, have a wide range of commercial, homemaking, and vocational courses to choose from that our predecessors did not have.



First row—Mr. Lazrus, Mr. Fruin, Mr. Elderd, Dr. Vivona. Second row—Mr. Edsell, Mrs. Rosenfeld, Mr. Dublin.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

The foundation of every state is the education of its youth.

—Diogenes

AT this vital period in our history—the dawn of the space age—we find that an ever-increasing emphasis is being placed on education. The "red schoolhouse" days are behind us, and we are confronted by an era in which general educational advancement must join hands with scientific achievement. This can be done effectively only if our schools are able to keep pace with the forward-moving trends of the times. We at Lawrence are indeed fortunate to have as members of our Board of Education these men of vision who exemplify that which is timely and necessary in educational progress.

MR. ARTHUR W. COOMBS
Superintendent of Schools

THE opportunity given to our students to exercise free choice in the selection of a career is an important part of the American way of life. Unfortunately, however, the same system of freedom of choice that we prize so highly for its recognition of the importance of the individual, results in occasional shortages in fields of special need. Motivated by artificial standards and values created by the society in which we live, too many capable high school and college students have subordinated the public welfare, and their own also, to individual financial success.

Because of our system of free enterprise, many families in this area have a substantially better-than-average income, with the result that some Lawrence students could well afford to enter the service areas—to choose careers in teaching, scientific investigation, religion, the arts, and even politics. These pursuits, perhaps relatively unattractive from the economic point of view, offer the greatest possible opportunity for personal satisfaction. In them there is also a need for well qualified people.

Wm. Coombs

THE many and varied experiences you have had during your four years in high school were intended to afford an opportunity for you to become personally and socially effective. If the school has been successful in its program, and if you have capitalized upon it to the best of your individual ability, you should now possess the background which will make it possible for you to move forward toward the realization of your personal goals and the fulfillment of your obligation to make a substantial contribution to the well-being of others.

Let me extend to each one of you my congratulations upon your graduation and my sincere wishes for your continued happiness.

Henry C. Boschert

MR. HENRY C. BOSCHERT
Assistant to Superintendent of Schools

CONGRATULATIONS to this fine senior class of 1959. I trust that you have enjoyed your four years at Lawrence as much as we have enjoyed having you. May you continue your achievements in the future to such an extent that we at Lawrence can join your parents in being proud of you and your accomplishments.

James H Simmonds

MR. JAMES SIMMONDS
Principal

MR. FRANK KRIZ
Assistant Principal

MY sincere best wishes to the graduates of the Class of 1959—may you all experience a life of rich fulfillment and the successful realization of many of your plans.

As you enter adulthood you will be tempted many times to waylay or even discard basic truths and mores of our society. During these difficult times one must resort to a staunch adherence to basic beliefs that we acquire at home, in school and at church. The strength of our freedom and our country is based on the spirit of Plato. "Freedom," he says, "is no matter of laws and constitutions; only he is free who realizes the divine order within himself, the true standard by which a man can steer himself.

CLASSES

The Greeks were famed for their schools of learning.
In this section we shall observe the Lawrence student body, graduating class
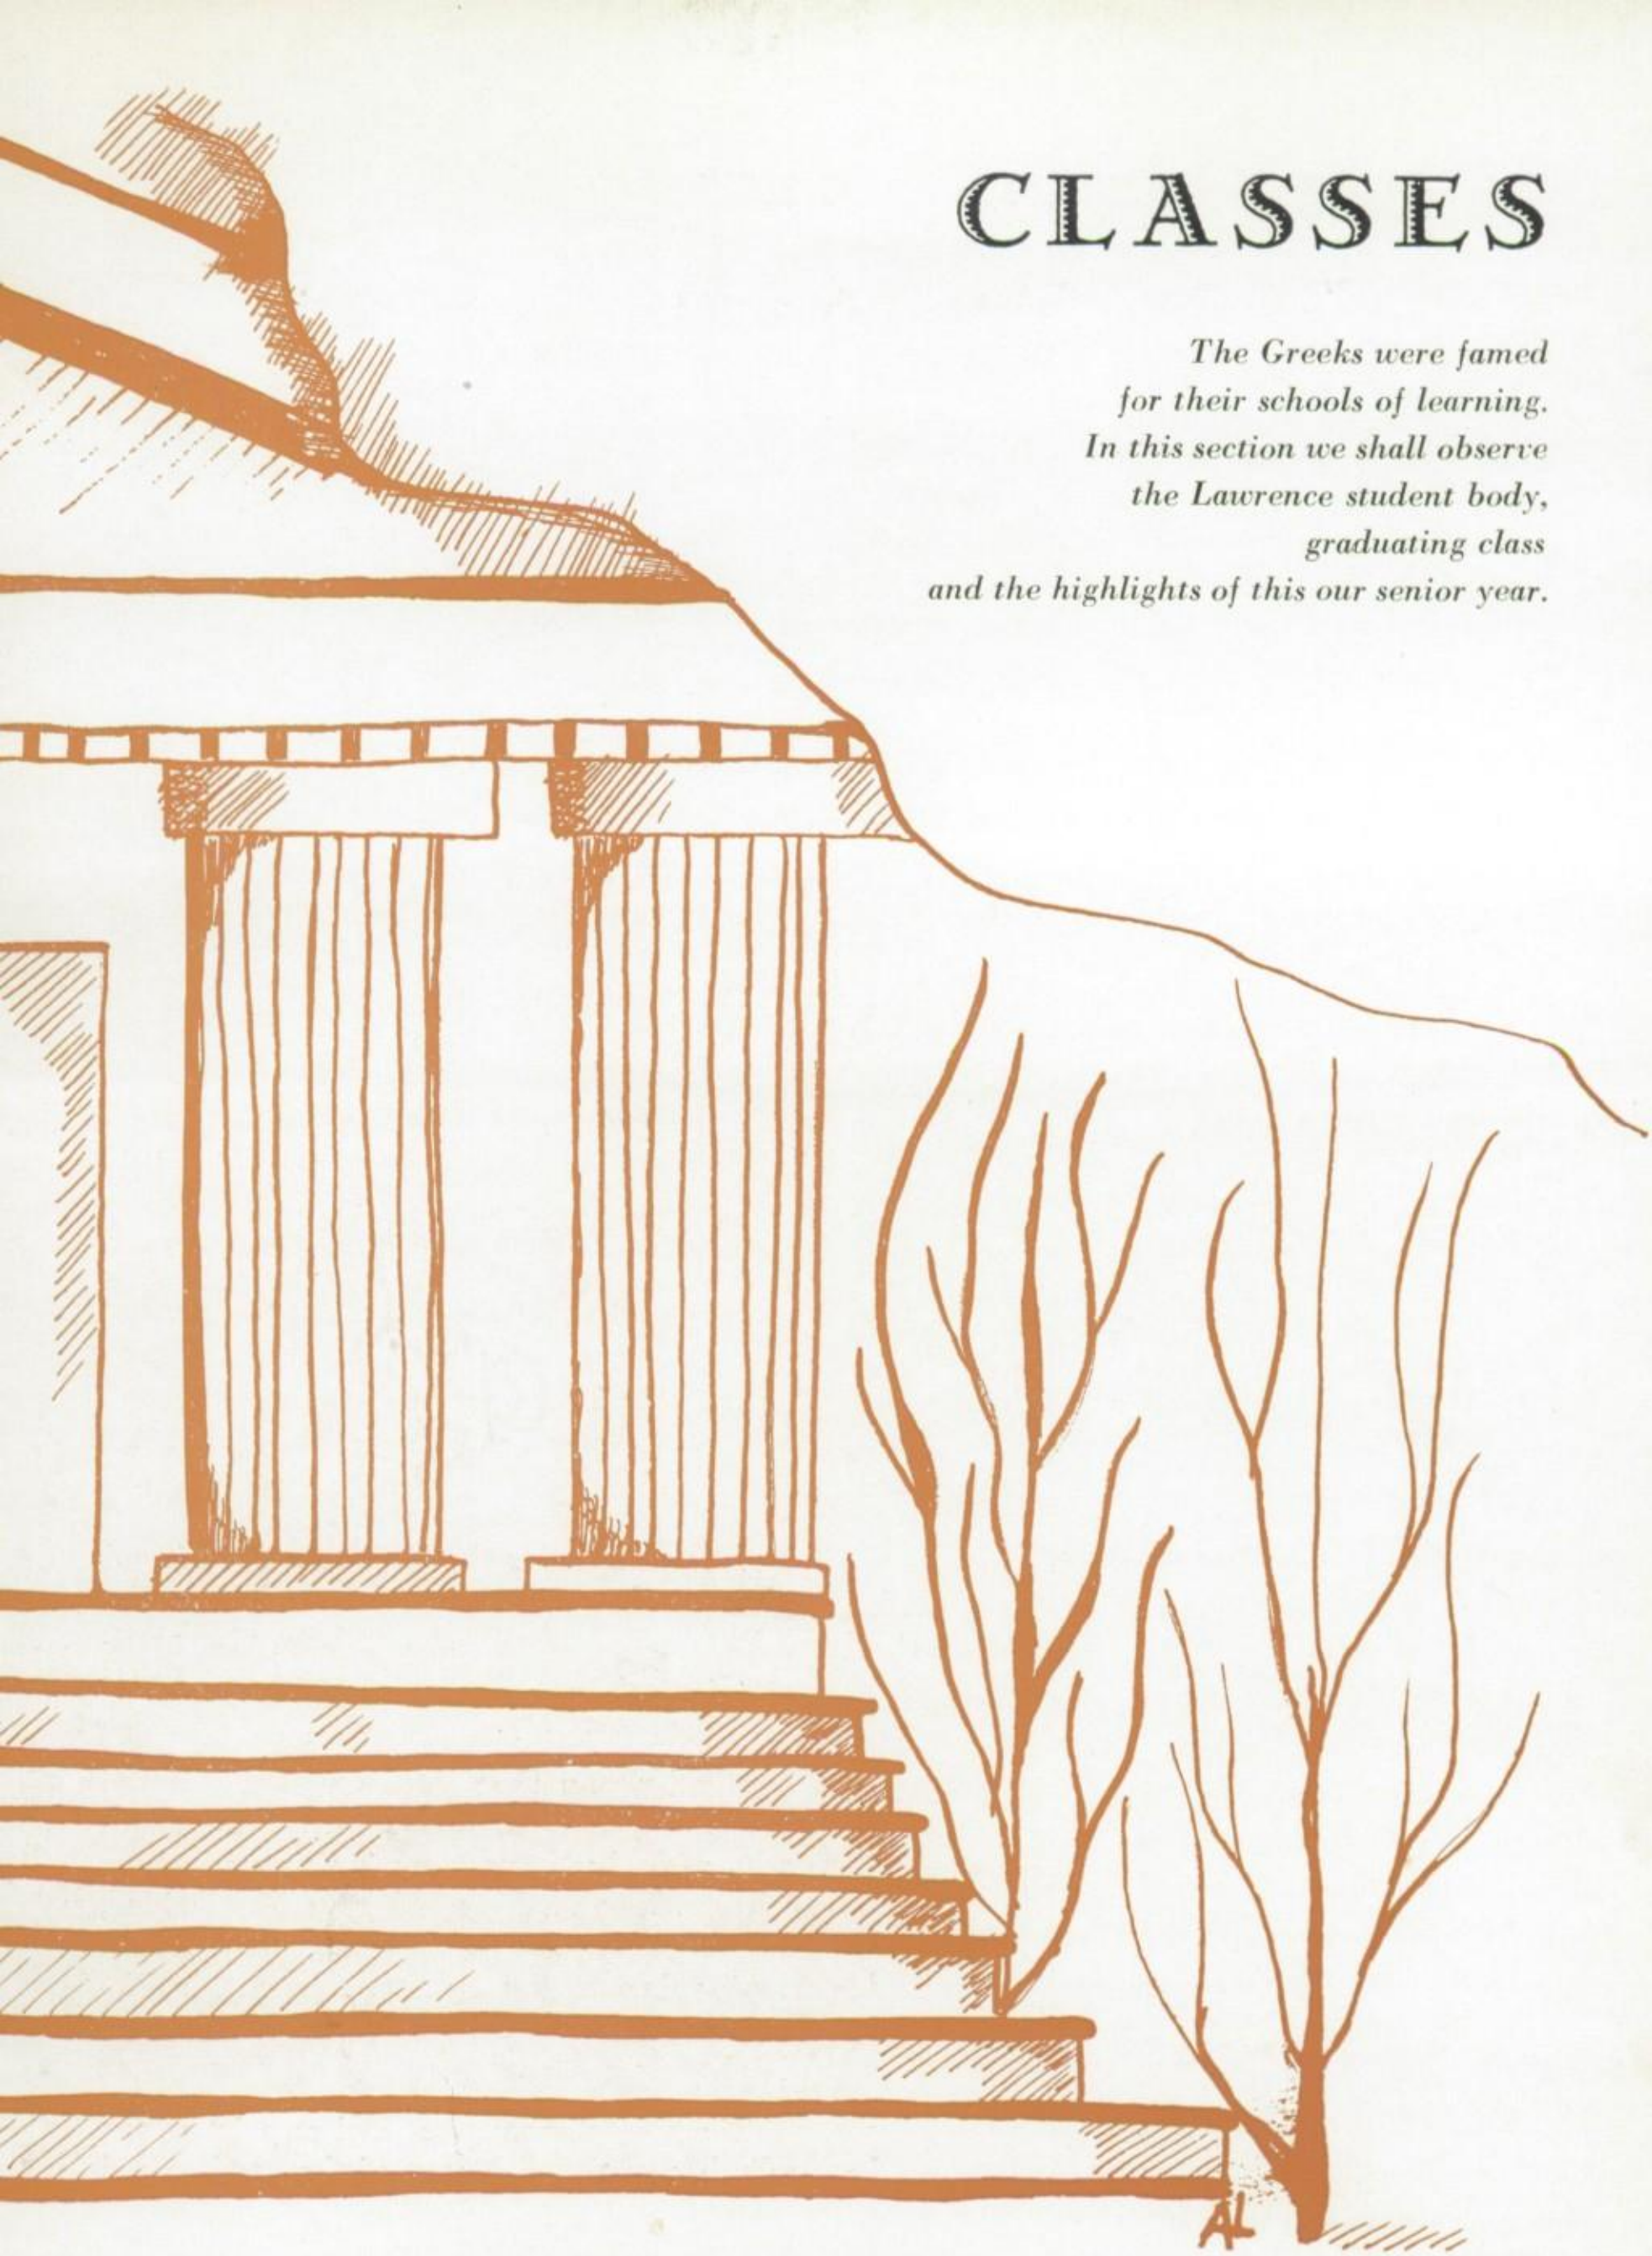
and the highlights of this our senior year.



OF TIMES REMEMBERED

JUNE 22—a memorable day for the class of '59. Commencement had arrived.

A casual onlooker might have found it difficult to recognize, in those seasoned veterans, the same students who had filed apprehensively to freshman English class in September, 1955. Soon the youthful class of '59 elected its officers: Mr. Caponi, class adviser; Victor Hazan, president; Rosemary DePalma, vice president; Frank Ashby, secretary; and Mary Ann Marcantonio, treasurer.

At the freshman hop, '59ers had an opportunity to become better acquainted with their classmates. By early November, the Lawrence Tornadoes were proving to be fierce contenders for the Triple-A crown.

"I'm failing geometry," was a prevalent wail, but the athletic events, club activities, and gala sophomore hop compensated. Elections resulted in the choice of Mr. Doyle, adviser; Harold Avent, president; Joyce Sparks, vice president; Richard Catropa, secretary; and Victor Hazan, treasurer.

Silas Marner, Julius Caesar, and other literary greats had become a thing of the past as junior year rolled around, presenting new worlds for the class to conquer. Head warriors were Mr. Glenday, adviser; Victor Hazan, president; Gil Kaplan, vice president; Joyce Sparks, secretary; and Mike Rothenberg, treasurer.

Class jewelry—to buy or not to buy, and what to buy—was a pressing problem. A climax to the year's social events was the Junior Prom, with the gymnasium converted into a lavish cruise ship.

By September, 1958, the end was in sight. Somewhere between college applications, boards, and senior themes, the seniors found time to elect Mr. Daly, adviser; Victor Hazan, president; Mike Rothenberg, vice president; Mike B. Mosher, treasurer; and Lewis Sussman, secretary.

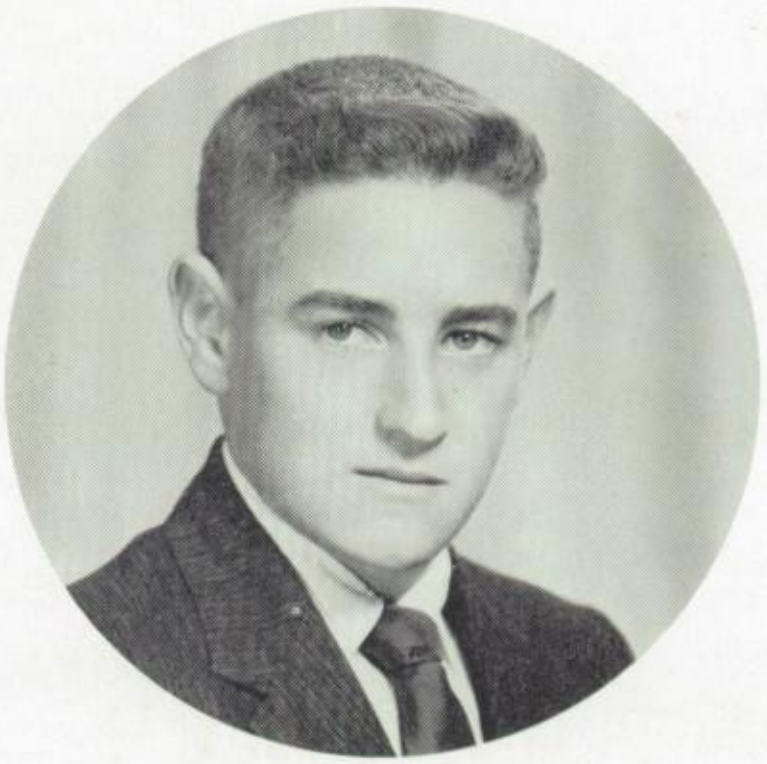
Sussman, Hazan, Mr. Daly, Mosher, Rothenberg.

Highlighting the football season was the televised game between Lawrence and Baldwin, with the Tornadoes winning a smashing victory. It was a senior's duty to be dignified, and dignified he was, as a student teacher on senior day, as a magazine salesman in November, and as a participant in the June Night ceremonies.

The senior prom, the final step in a long climb, was the high spot of the year's social events.

HONOR SPEAKERS

MAINTAINING a remarkable average of 96.58, Michael B. Mosher has achieved the valedictory position. Recognized as an active and industrious individual, he has distinguished himself in extra-curricular, as well as scholastic activities. Characterizing his accomplishments are his prominent positions as president of Honor Society, co-captain of Marshals, treasurer of the senior class, and Lawrencian senior write-up editor. With his outstanding ability and perseverance, Michael is sure to achieve his desired goals.



SALUTATORIAN of the class Barbara Rubin has maintained an average of 95.88. A member of Buskins, the Marshals, and Honor Society, officer of Latin and French Clubs, as well as co-Literary Editor of the Mental Pabulum, Barbara has had a very busy and exciting four years. Remarkable as it may seem, this versatile young lady has found time to partake in the various sports offered and to reach the Honor Team in basketball and tennis. Judging from her past, a rosy future lies ahead.

THIRD honor speaker is Stephen Langfur, whose average is 95.68. An active member in school and local functions, he has brought great credit to his school. The position for which he is most noted, however, is that of Sports Editor of the Mental Pabulum. Stephen is preparing for a career in creative writing. With his literary, artistic, and oratorical talents, he has the necessary ingredients to make whatever he wants a reality.

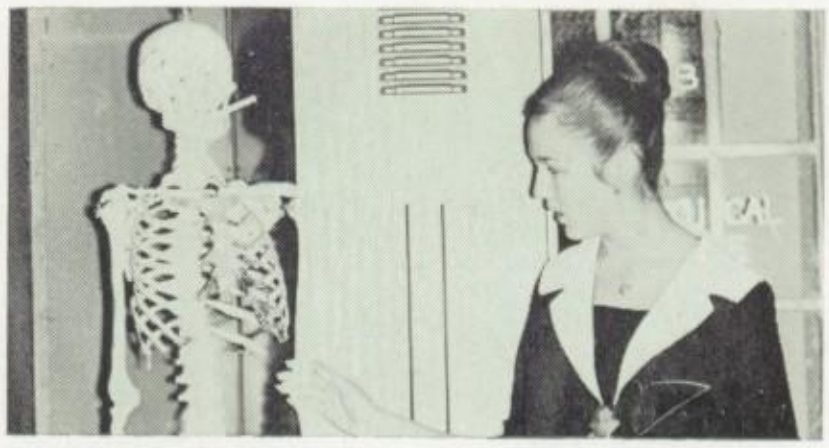
"Prof" Mandel gives the word.



As Miss Rose lectures on the vertebrae Suzie smokes her daily cigarette.

The officers of the senior class assumed administrative positions: Victor Hazan was Mr. Simmonds; Michael Rothenberg was Mr. Kriz; Michael Mosher was Mr. Kretz; and Louis Sussman was Mr. Page. With their guidance and the seniors' cooperation, the day was a tremendous success.

At lunch time seniors, as well as underclassmen, enthusiastically discussed their morning activities. Eating at their own reserved table in the cafeteria, seniors enjoyed another privilege of the day. At afternoon roll call, Mr. Kriz introduced "Mr. Kriz," who made further announcements.

To climax the event and to follow in true tradition, the senior class put on its skit, a satiric representation of school life. After the Last Will and Testament was read, they retired to the gymnasium, where a dance was given in their honor. This provided an excellent opportunity for discussion of the day's proceedings.

By the end of the day all were thoroughly exhausted from walking, talking, and even writing on the blackboard. The would-be-teachers admitted that a teacher's life wasn't exactly easy.

"Ain't anyone there, Ed, he went away when I opened the door."

"Hasn't your figure changed since I began, eight years ago, Mr. DiPinna?"

"What does the Internal Revenue Department want with us?"

SATURDAY evening, March 21, the Lawrence High School stage magically turned into the home of Martin Vanderhof, as the senior class presented "You Can't Take It With You" by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman. Mr. Salvatore Russo directed the performance.

The play portrays the Sycamore family in everyday roles pursuing individual pleasures. Grandpa Vanderhof attends commencements and raises snakes, Mrs. Sycamore writes plays and Mr. Sycamore makes firecrackers. Daughter Essie's passion is dancing while her husband Ed's joy lies in printing.

However, complications set in when daughter Alice becomes engaged to young Mr. Anthony Kirby Jr., her boss's son. Although her family agrees to conform to normalities the night the Kirby's are to meet the Sycamore's, unexpected developments occur when the Kirby's arrive a night earlier by mistake. Adding touches of humor to this hilarious family are Mr. Kolenkov, the Russian dancing teacher; Mr. DePinna, the iceman who stays for 8 years; the Grand Duchess Olga Katrina; Henderson, the tax collector; Gay, the drinking actress; Rheba; and Donald.

"Let me present the Grand Duchess Olga Katrina."

"I don't mean it, I just like to print."

"Gee, Paul, those sure are pretty words."

SENIORS SATIRIZE

IN the tradition of Greek tragedy, the class of '59 presented to the faculty and upperclassmen The Lawrencia, this year's Senior Skit. The play, written by Dorothy Heid and the Senior Skit Committee, was performed at the conclusion of Senior Day, February 4, 1959.

The production revolved about a senior who, in his hour of confusion, set out in search of the "Great Oracle," who, we later learned, was our own class adviser, Mr. Daly. On his pilgrimage the senior encountered many members of the "faculty" and student body, as well as several of the humorous aspects of school life.

The student body was divided into two Greek tribes, the Bohos (the "cultural elite") and the Ivies. Each of these "tribes" contributed considerably to the skit in the presentation of musical numbers.

The attractive stage setting and the ingenious costumes did much to carry out the Greek motif. The music, provided by the Lawrence High School Band, added an obtrusive note of gaiety and spirit to the occasion.

As the final curtain fell, the Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1959 was presented, providing a great deal of entertainment for all.

SCHOOL LIFE

The daily life of the Greeks was diversified.
Here we shall picture
of Lawrence student life.

UNDERLYING the Greek culture and ideals was a firm belief in individual participation in government, social activities and athletics. Every Greek citizen had a direct say in his affairs, and this idea of participation gave the ancients a sense of identification with their state and lent vigor to their governmental institution. One might say that this was responsible for the spirit and enthusiasm of Greek life.

In this respect, a parallel can be drawn between Greek culture and school life at Lawrence High School. The students of Lawrence seek many means of instilling in themselves spirit and admiration for their school.

Lawrence is much more than a place where spelling rules, history dates, and Latin conjugations are taught; it is a place where future goals, respect for government, and decent sets of values are formulated. This is not accomplished solely in a class room atmosphere, but rather in open meetings, in free discussions, in practice of the wonderful process on which this country was founded.

It is evident that students acquit themselves well when given a chance to accomplish things for themselves with the advice and support of the faculty and administration. One need only look at the two prime literary organs of the school, the Lawrencian and the Mental Pablum to see this. This year the "Pab" reported various school activities with unswerving quality, veracity, and promptness. As a just reward for their efforts, the Pab staff received a medalist rating at the Columbia Press Conference. This Conference was a highlight in Mental Pab's year, and the Pabsters attended it as enthusiastically as they worked for the paper throughout the whole year. The Lawrencian is another example of how students working together with cooperation can perform a job well done. The staff has labored ceaselessly under the skillful and authoritative direction of Richard Edelson and Paul Schwartz to produce a book which will serve as a pleasant reminder of an eventful, progress-filled year in Lawrence's history.

In their annual tournament this year, the Buskins did not adhere to the Greek tradition of Euripides and Sophocles, preferring, instead, humorous pieces of more recent authors. The thrill of the rising curtain, of laughter and applause, will not soon be forgotten by the Buskineers who took part in the production. Not only did the actors have that wonderful feeling of accomplishment, but also the student directors, the expert lighting and stage crews, and the make-up and prop committees shared this thrill.

The Greeks were great believers in the power of athletics and the importance of the development of the body. Lawrence, too, has its discus throwers and marathon runners. We had an exciting football season highlighted by the game which was televised. This presented the student body with the difficult decision of whether to go to the game and perchance appear on the screen, or stay home and watch for friends. Such a demonstration of pep as was displayed that day demonstrates how Lawrencians are capable of school spirit when there is an occasion for it. It is unfortunate that the eyes of Metropolitan New York (via TV) cannot constantly be trained on Lawrence from 8 in the morning to 3 in the afternoon. Our basketball team, not to be outdone by the celebrities on the football team, played extremely well, as did the baseball team. The girls applied their usual energy to tennis, badminton, volleyball, basketball, bowling, and softball with amazing results.

The Muses of Mount Parnassus must have inspired the school's choruses, so beautiful were their Christmas and Easter Shows this year. Their artistic renditions of parts of the "Messiah" conveyed the true spirit of the Christmas season. Anyone who has classes on the Far Rockaway side of the second floor will always remember the lovely moments spent taking tests while being supplied with background music.

A Greek lyre may be absent from the varied instruments in our orchestra, but there is no harm done. Our musicians cover up nobly for its absence. The orchestra and chorus concerts this year were excellent, and Lawrencians paid more attention to music than ever before. From Bach to the Big Bopper, many watched a delegation dance on the Alan Freed Rock 'n Roll Show, while others listened proudly to Ruth Glasser's cello performance on WQXR.

This year saw the birth of many new and unusual clubs. The Bridge Club sharpened wits while the Ice Skating Club sharpened blades and the members of the reorganized Creative Writing Clubs sharpened their tongues to "constructively criticize" fellow members' masterpieces. While mentioning innovations this year, we might note a few which the Greeks never dreamed of. Who ever thought that the day would come when the custodians' room would be turned into a classroom, when a fluorescent light would be installed in the boiler room (all the atmosphere is gone), and when cars in the parking lot would overflow into the driveway? Did Greek charioteers have such a problem?

For one memorable day, the Seniors took over the functions of both faculty and administration. This year's Senior Day, which was so well done and enjoyable for one and all, is a practical example of what students can do for themselves if given the chance. The day's classes were followed by the anxiously awaited and superbly prepared Senior Skit, which was, aptly enough, a Greek tragedy complete with togas and Greek chorus.

ATHENIANS ALL

THE sacred way to learning in this, the School of Hellas, was strongly felt in the Academic Department.

For the Euclidians among us the Math Department, headed by Mr. George Glenday, provides a strong foundating, offering elementary and advanced algebra, 10th and 11th year mathematics, and solid geometry. Recently activated in this department was the switch from plane geometry to 10th year math and the combination of intermediate algebra and trigonometry into 11th year math. In doing so, the subject is taught as one unit progressing in difficulty and variation so that the student may more fully understand the processes of math. As the "search for truth" was the backbone of Athenian culture, so it is in our own.

The English and History Departments, under Mr. Daniel Daly and Miss Dorothy Griffith respectively, boast of honor classes in which selected juniors and seniors obtain an added amount of knowledge and appreciation. As an enriched course, this innovation encourages the student to delve into the deeper meanings of events and literature, equipping him with a fuller, more comprehensive education.

The times we live in and the never ending thirst for knowledge have dictated improvements in the Science Department of which Mr. Walter Ahner is the chairman. To help the young scientist, general science, biology, chemistry, and physics are offered. In the last three subjects, laboratory work is made available so that the students can put into practice principles of the scientific method, as discussed in class. An advanced, voluntary course is offered for scientifically minded students.

Also broadening the students' scope of knowledge is language. In a world so closely knitted by the improvements in transportation, French, Spanish, and Hebrew may be readily used, while Latin, the basis for many modern languages, provides the student with an invaluable cultural background. All these are offered by our Language Department headed by Miss Mabel Leavitt.

In conjunction with the daily "Symposiums," many audio-visual aids and club activities are offered. To supplement English and history courses, the library provides complete, up-to-date research material.

In culminating the four years the student must fulfill certain academic requirements set forth by the New York State Board of Regents. A minimum of 16 credits, including four of English, 3 or 4 of citizenship education, one of general science, and a three-year sequence in any other subject is mandatory. In following this program the recipient of the Regents Diploma must also pass Regents and certified examinations.

So that students can get a head start on their homework, study periods are provided.

FACTS

The operation of a successful business office depends largely upon the efficiency of its staff. The skills of competent stenographers, bookkeepers, and secretaries are in increasing demand. To prepare students for these positions, the business department of Lawrence High School endeavors to meet modern commercial requirements. With Miss Katherine B. Jack, teacher of typing and secretarial practice, as its chairman, the entire department sponsors a program in which jobs are secured for graduates who successfully complete the business course. Miss Jack is assisted by Miss Kathryn Koerber, Miss Rita Giovenco, and Mr. Owen Tuthill.

A student taking the business course is eligible for a Regents Diploma. The sequence begins with introduction to business and is followed by typing and shorthand I. Next come business law, shorthand II, and transcription, after which is secretarial practice. Business mathematics and business English are given as electives as well as part of the required sequence.

The business program is not limited to stenography, typing and bookkeeping. The modern business procedure necessitates a working knowledge of office machines. Mastery of the operation of the dictaphone, mimeograph machine, adding machine, and electric typewriter is essential for a well-rounded background in this field. With these facilities available the girls are completely prepared for employment in industry.

In addition to the subject matter emphasized in this program, students learn proper etiquette and decorum in the business office. Discussions are held and conclusions reached on telephone answering, suitable dress, and interviews.

Affiliated with the commercial courses, are two extra-curricular activities. The Clerical Practice and Secretarial Clubs, as their names imply, try to give their members a preview of their future work. Through trips and guest lectures this objective is attained.

THE size of the Lawrence High School Vocational Department is indicative of its importance as an integral part of the school's program. While the student's academic education is not neglected, the practical application of his knowledge is deemed equally significant. Headed by Mr. Eckhardt Beck, the department aims at satisfying the future needs of its students. Thus the purpose is two-fold: (1) it trains boys for later positions in their chosen fields and (2) it rounds out the education of its pupils encouraging good citizenship.

Most "voc" students follow the so-called "school" program. Completion of the required courses entitles them to receive a Lawrence High School Diploma and a Vocational Certificate. This sequence differs from the academic in that the emphasis is placed on development of knowledge to suit their jobs and in that final examinations are made up by faculty members. Many boys, however, take regular academic courses in order to qualify for technical school after graduation.

MASTER

The first two years are treated as an experimental or trial period in which the student has the opportunity to discover in what direction his main aptitudes and abilities lie. Having been given instruction in four shops, he is ready to specialize in that field in which he is most proficient. This is where he will spend most of his time in school for the next two years. For half of each day, he is also taught such subjects as related English, math, hygiene, practical science, history, and geography.

In the electrical shop, for example, two different types of electrical work are taught. Under the supervision of Mr. Frank Clarkson, the boys studying electrical circuits learn to wire almost every different type of motor. Besides studying the complex make-up of televisions, radios, amplifiers, transmitters, and other electronic instruments, the boys frequently engage in mechanical work around the school. Valuable practical experience is gained by doing service wiring around the building, such as installing telephones, arranging public address systems, and fixing lighting fixtures.

From another shop emerge our future electricians and radio technicians, who learn the skills of welding, sheet metal working, and riveting. Although the many machines in Mr. Herbert Sword's shop may seem confusing to an outsider, these complexities become completely familiar to the student. However, before they are taught to run the machine, the pupils learn how to interpret involved plans for jobs and how to apply trigonometry to their everyday machine shop activities.

The consuming interest that many males, young and old, have in cars is not overlooked by the Vocational Department. In the auto shop the boys learn everything about a car by working on the "real thing." The enigmas that differentials, carburetors, and transmissions present to us laymen are the ABC's of a vocational student.

A mechanical drawing class, taught by Mr. Marosy, completes the Vocational Department. This is an affiliated elective course in which the pupils learn to draw blueprints for three dimensional objects called "blocks."

Four years of intensive training completed, the vocational student is equipped to earn a living. After graduation he may choose to attend a technical school where he can enlarge upon what he already knows. Whichever path he takes, he can be secure in the knowledge that he is now able to enter into a skilled craft and successfully accomplish his aims.

THE obvious change in the position of women can be readily seen, when compared with that in the Greek city-state. At that time she was excluded from political and social activities; her life centered about the simplicity of the home.

To prepare interested girls for future roles in the domestic scene, Lawrence High School emphasizes the practical homemaking program. The entire course and electives are open to girls desiring knowledge or career preparation. Health, nutrition, clothing and social adjustment are among the many phases of home living covered. Under the guidance of Miss Winifred E. Sloane, chairman of the Homemaking Department and school lunches, Mrs. Justina Flynn, teacher of sewing, and Mrs. Gertrude Kuznitz, cooking instructor, the girls consider, discuss, and put into practice these distinct aspects.

The courses in homemaking generally follow a sequence; some, however, may be electives. The first, Homemaking I, offers instruction in the culinary arts, family relationships and problems, child care, and home management. Following this is homemaking II, which stresses grooming and home decor. Homemaking III is an advanced sequence course in which students are advised on how to cope with domestic problems in their future lives. Included in this discussion are food, home and community health problems, preparation for marriage, rearing children, and clothing of a family. College bound seniors may elect Homemaking 10-A, which deals primarily with food, clothing, family life, and self-understanding. Two advanced courses, 11 and and 12, are also offered.

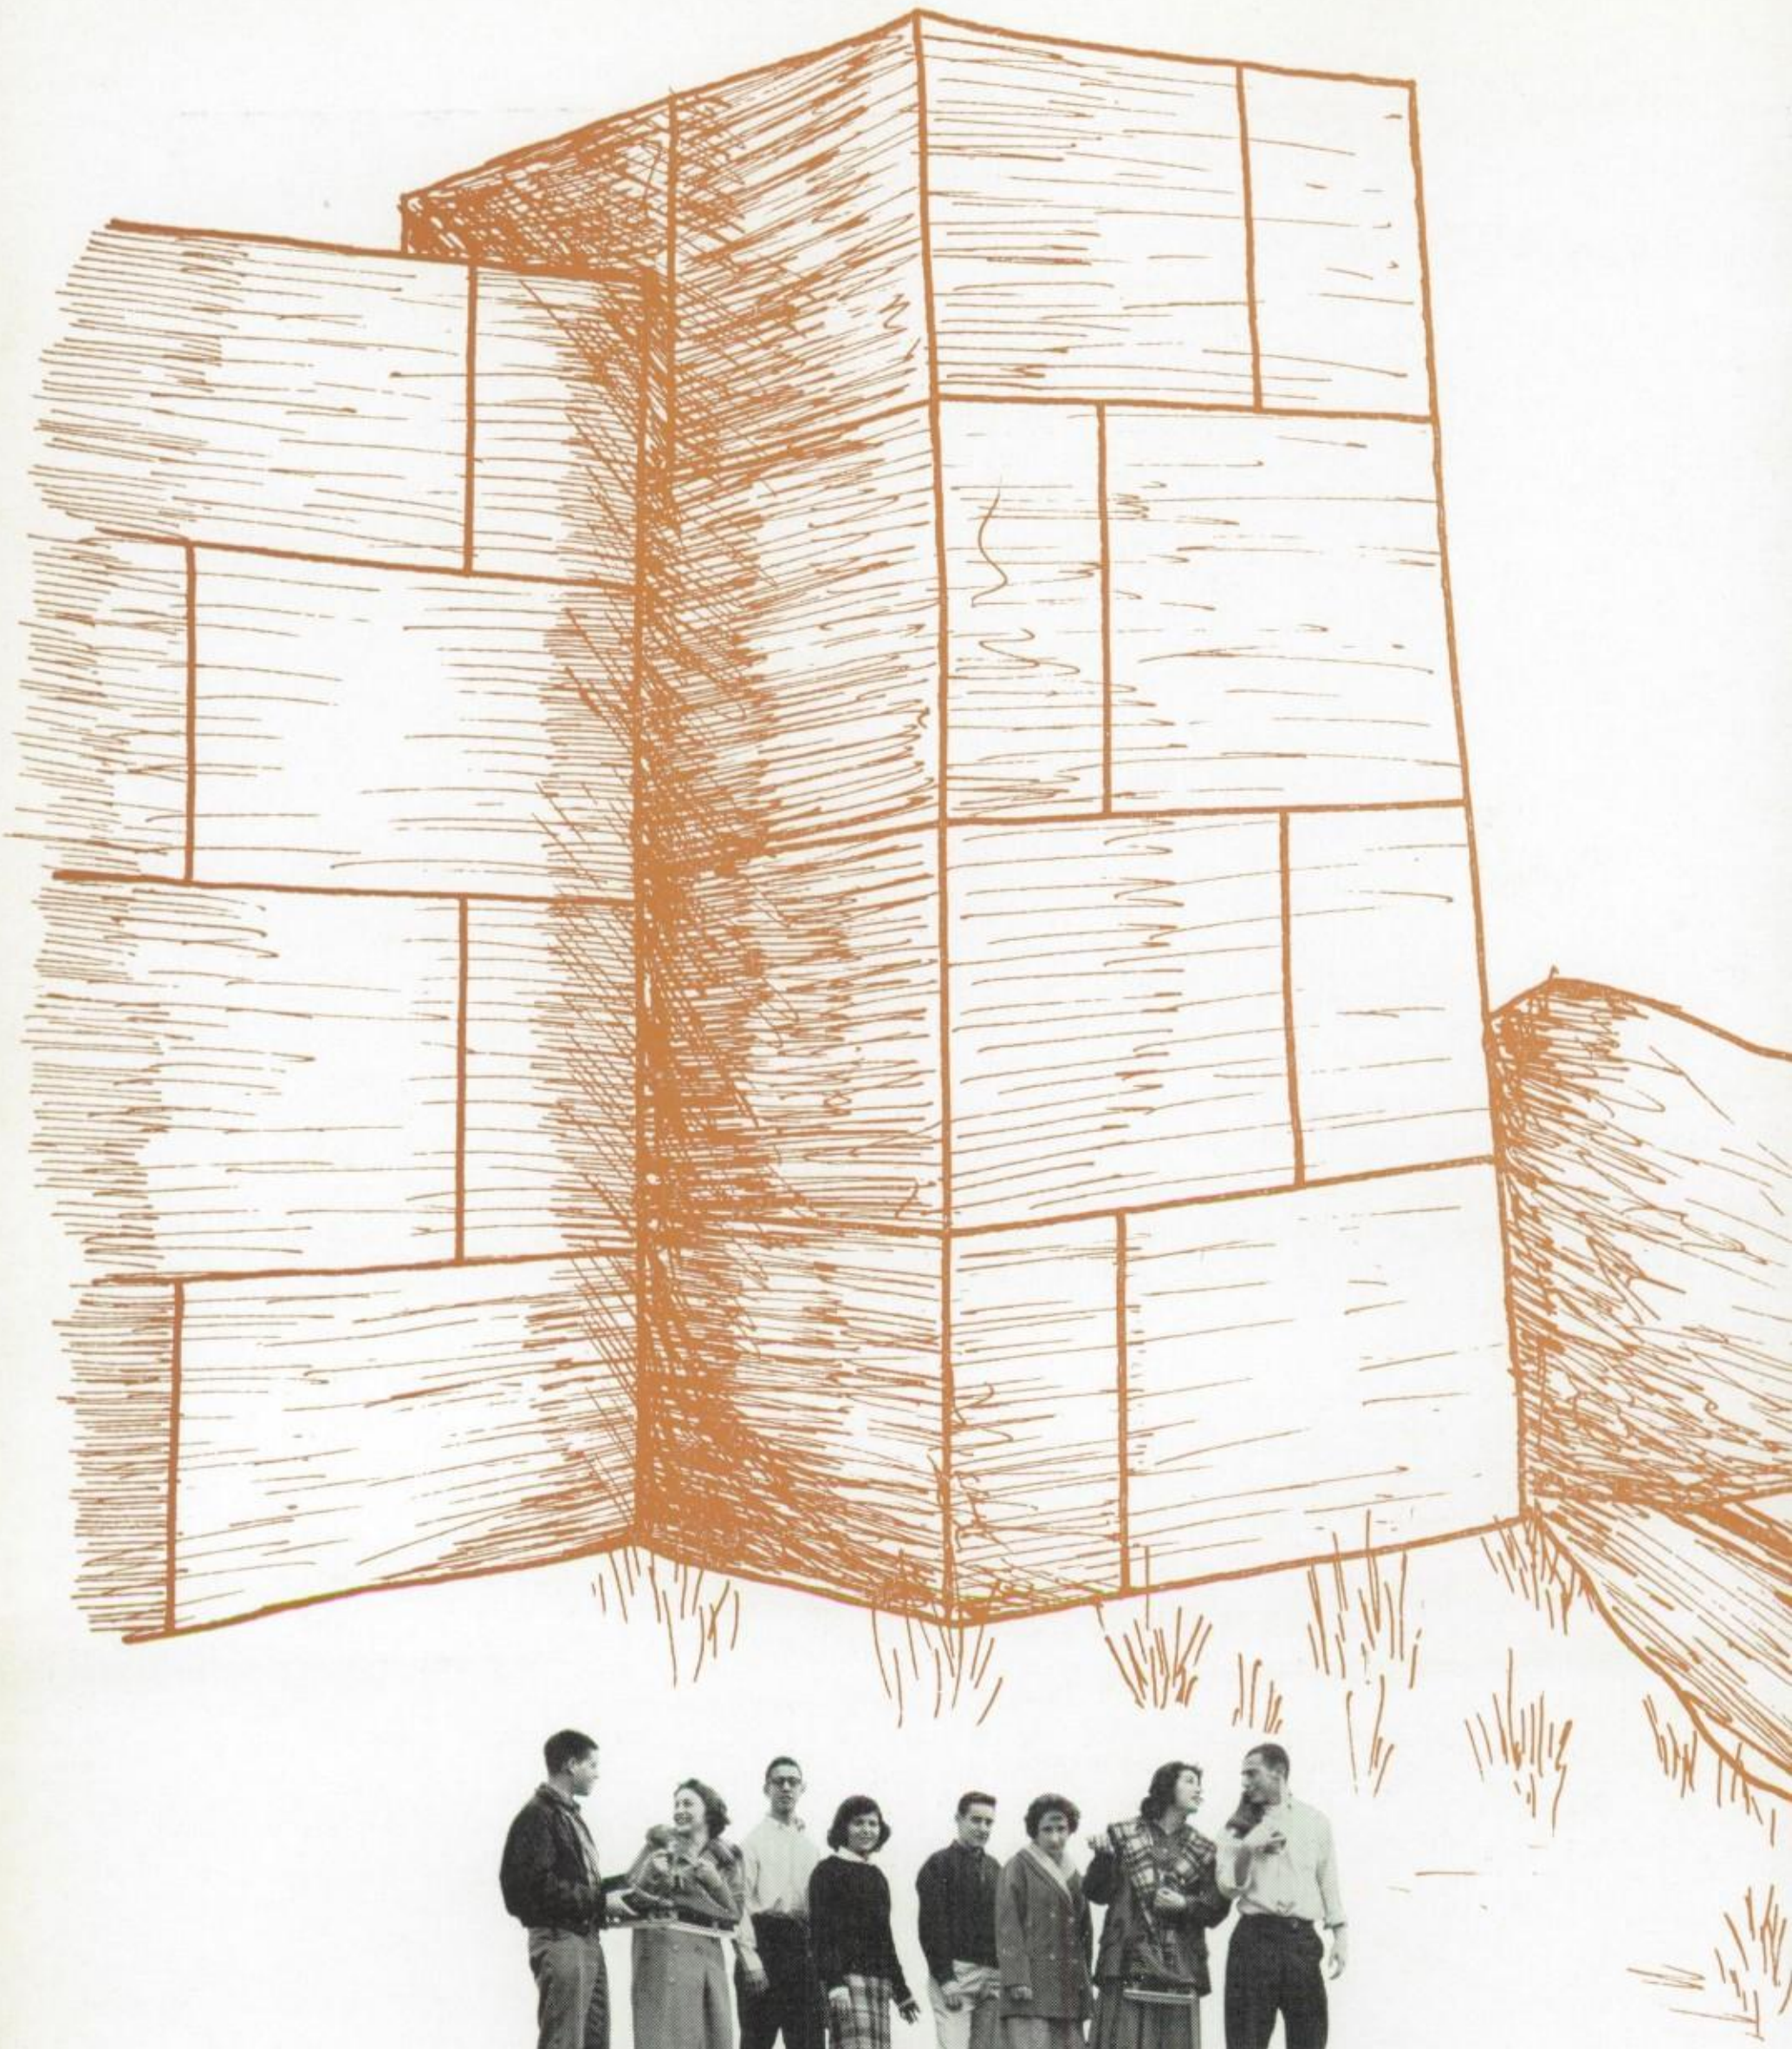
The obviously homey atmosphere about the Homemaking Department is felt particularly in what is known as the "apartment." Included in this suite of rooms are the kitchen, living room, dining room, bedroom, and bath. These are used by the girls and their instructors as a meeting place where everyone may feel well at ease to discuss her problems and future plans. Many times the faculty members are entertained here too. These model rooms set the scene and enhance the girls' understanding of the homemaker's tasks.

In the sewing department the girls may be found busily at work styling their own clothes. They are taught how to match colors and coordinate their wardrobes. But action speaks louder than words. The Christian Diors of tomorrow model their own creations in their annual fashion show. The cooking department also puts its efforts to the test. After studying balanced meals and organizing table settings, the calorie conscious girls prepare savory dishes. The cooking department's kitchen is arranged to provide ample room for each classroom group to receive individual instructions.

Time is saved by a Singer.

Mrs. Flynn teaches students how to cut pattern.

A look into the future reveals promising opportunities for home economics majors. Hospitals and institutions are anxious to employ girls with this background; dietitians and nurses are in demand. Courses in appropriate and becoming dress are invaluable for careers as clothing designers and courturiers, whereas those in personal appearance and grooming may often lead to the remunerative vocation of the beautician. No matter what her future may bring, training in home economics is basic for every girl.



ACTIVITIES

LAWRENCIAN MASTHEAD

First row—Goldsamt, Schindel, Schwartz, Mr. Merriam, Miss Johnson, Edelson, Kahn, Hazan.

PRESERVERS OF THE PAST

THE purpose of the Lawrencian is to serve as a reminder of all that has transpired during the student's four years at Lawrence High School. In depicting the academic and extra-curricular activities, the staff of 1959 has endeavored to capture as a tangible representation something of the spirit or feeling in the school that remains with the student long after the remembrance of the actual experience has faded.

Much work is put into the yearbook of which the average reader may be unaware. Editors-in-Chief, Richard Edelson and Paul Schwartz, have the strenous task of coordinating the efforts of the staff all working on the different phases and areas. It is up to them to determine policy, theme, and layout. Their first job is to prepare the "dummy" or basic form that the book will take. From this point on each staff member must begin to do his assigned part. The work of the literary staff is edited and rewritten by the literary editors Roberta Goldsamt and Elaine Kahn. To Victor Hazan, the business manager, falls the exacting job of balancing books, which do not always wish to be balanced. Without the work of the many students on the advertising staff, under the management of Jane Schindel and her assistant Stephanie Rosenberg, our financial situation would not have been so favorable. Maureen Berle, as circulation manager, headed her staff in the sale and distribution of this publication. Florence Licurse and Helen Rella, the staff typists, successfully conquered all problems that arose, including a stubborn typewriter.

Perhaps the most important section of the Lawrencian is provided by our own photography staff headed by Murray Frischer and by Mr. Sameroff, who took the pictures of the seniors and clubs. Also contributing to the lighter side of the book are the senior write-ups contrived by Michael B. Mosher and his staff. Due credit must, of course, be given to the faculty advisers, Mr. Ray Merriam and Miss Dorothy Johnson, without whose assistance and encouragement the Lawrencian could not have been produced.

In ensuing years many students will look back at the Lawrencian, a reminder of their school days, recalling past experiences, aspirations and activities. The staff of 1959 has labored long and arduously in the hope that they may be able to present their interpretation accurately and effectively.

MENTAL PABULUM

THE entire student body and faculty look forward to the Mental Pabulum, the school publication which comes out every six weeks. This is easily understood, for it is a rare person who does not enjoy seeing his name in print. The wide variety of topics that the "Pab" covers also adds to its popularity.

Mrs. Madeline F. Denton, faculty adviser, contributes the advice that comes from experience, while Dorothy Heid and Judy Mahl, Editors-in-chief, add their judgment, ability to take command, and, of course, their column. Managing editor, Jane Gilbert, plans the layout of the paper. Barry K. Schwartz, feature editor, interviews a prominent person for each issue and arranges for the "guest editorial." Boys' sports editor, Steve Langfur, and his sports staff attract the males with "Sportlite," while Mada Levine, girls' sports editor, writes "Sportacular," attracting the girls. Susan Peltz, aulmni editor, and Linda Pollack both write social news in their columns, Letters to Lawrencians and Dateline Lawrence. Literary editors, Barbara and Marsha Rubin, enlighten us with Literary Lights. Drawings are made by Judith Rosenberg, while Andrew Rothman, photography editor, and his photographers, enliven the Pab with photographs. Jacqueline Buchman exchanges newspapers with other high schools. Advertising manager Michael Geller and Lewis Feldstein obtain the advertisements appearing in each issue. Circulation managers Judith Harris and James Oestreich distributed Mental Pabulum to distant places and to school homerooms. Business manager, Robert Kass, keeps records and books straight. In addition, the following new features have been added: Space Age by Richard Feldstein, Lawrencian Charioteers by Richard Feldstein, Idiot's Delight by Dorothy Heid and Judith Mahl, The Bat by Rozy Friedman, and an editorial in each issue by the head of a department.

These factors explain the recognition that the Columbia Scholastic Press Conference in 1959 awarded the Mental Pabulum by giving them a medalist rating, the highest honor. In view of the fact that it has maintained and improved the standards heretofore established, we are sure that it will continue to receive the same type of recognition.

STAMP OF ACCLAMATION

"TO maintain a high ambition for the enduring values of life and to bear forth the searching light of truth" are the aims of the National Honor Society. A student's acceptance in this organization reflects not only his ability to maintain a high scholastic average, but even more important, symbolizes a basic maturity and wisdom reflected in his willingness to accept responsibility and his contributive spirit in school organizations.

In addition to having maintained an 85 per cent average for three years, each student must be considered by the faculty to possess the attributes of scholarship, character, leadership, and service; these four qualities being the watchwords which appear on the emblem of the Society. The flaming torch symbolizes the unending search for these ideals.

The Honor Society provides the freshman with their photographs and ushers at the graduation exercises. Members of this organization set an exemplary goal for lowerclassmen to work for.

The inspiring program of induction into the Honor Society on Award Night is a rewarding experience. At this time the officers explain the goals and purposes of the Society. New members recite a solemn pledge in the seriousness of the occasion. This year the following students were elected as officers: Mike Mosher, president; Lewis Sussman, vice-president; Mike Rothenberg, secretary; and Elaine Kahn, treasurer.

Miss Margaret Reed, faculty member, advised the organization.

THE REVELATION

ONCE every year, Award Night, Lawrence High School acknowledges the superior qualities and talents which many of the individuals in the graduating class have exhibited throughout their high school careers. Students receiving awards bring a great deal of credit upon themselves, upon their high school, and upon their community. They have exhibited qualities of scholarship, character, leadership, and service, factors which add to Lawrence's prestige.

The night begins with the presentation of several scholarships and awards, recognizing specialized or over-all achievement. The Central Council of the Parents-Teachers Association awards scholarships to those who are in need of financial assistance to continue their education. Four-year scholarships are also granted by Cornell University and the University of the State of New York. This year the following fourteen students distinguished themselves by winning New York State Regents scholarships: Richard Edelson, Lewis Feldstein, Jane Gilbert, Dorothy Heid, Marjory Heyman, Eric Jaffe, Elaine Kahn, David Katsky, Judith Mahl, Michael B. Mosher, Jeffrey Norwalk, Michael Rothenberg, Barbara Rubin, Paul Schwartz, Louis Sussman, and John Weltman. Eric Jaffe and Paul Schwartz won additional scholarships for Engineering, Physics and Chemistry. Awards are presented to the top three graduating students in the senior class and to those who have excelled in business subjects, homemaking, science, mathematics, athletics, and band. The Buskin Cup is presented to those individuals who gave outstanding performances in the Buskin Tournament. This year the recipients were Judy Azaria, Tony Kaufman, and Robert Spector.

The second part of the program recognizes those students who are considered to be well-rounded, as opposed to those with special talents. The solemn and impressive ceremony of induction into the National Honor Society, enhanced by choral numbers, follows.

A great deal of work goes into the preparation of Award Night. Early in the year members of the faculty select and inform scholarship-sponsoring groups of the most deserving students. Much credit must be given to Mr. Daniel Daly, who is instrumental in the organization of the program.

HONORARY GUIDES

ON seeing a Lawrence High School student wearing a buff and blue armband, one immediately knows quite a bit about him: that he is willing to serve, that he evidences good manners and consideration toward others, and that he possesses strong leadership qualities. Such are the attributes of the selected group of 50 students, called the Marshals, membership in which is considered a most noteworthy achievement.

The Marshals help the freshmen to accustom themselves to their new surroundings by showing them around the school and answering their innumerable questions. They act as ushers at social functions conducted by the student body, and guide slightly confused parents to the correct rooms on School Night. They are often called upon to take visitors or new students around the building. There are also many times during the year when students who can conduct themselves in an exemplary manner as representatives of the school are needed. More often than not, it is a Marshal who is called!

With the duties the Marshals are called upon to perform, the members naturally have to be familiar with the plan of the school. On occasion each person is assigned a specific part of the school or school body to advise.

With the advice of Miss Virginia Hartman, guidance counselor, the group was led by students Maureen Berle and Jane Gilbert, girl co-captains; and Paul Schwartz and Michael Mosher, boy co-captains.

FOR THE PEOPLE

THEORETICALLY supervising the scholastic and extra-curricular activities at Lawrence High School is our School Council. Chairman of the council is Mr. James H. Simmonds, principal. Partially an elected body, the council is composed of the faculty advisers and student officers of each class, Mr. Frank Kriz, vice-principal ,and the editors-in-chief of the Lawrencian and Mental Pabulum.

A modification of the Grecian direct democracy, it was originally created to promote cooperation between the student body and administration. The council is called upon several time during the school year to discuss problems pertinent to both groups. A campaign for more appropriate school attire, increased support of athletic events, and higher standards of scholarship are represenative of those matters which it is called upon to consider. Published by this group is the Lawrence High School Student Handbook. Of general interest to all pupils, it is referred to frequently during the four years of high school, as it contains factual information about the workings of the school. The annual drive for the March of Dimes, which is conducted in homerooms, is sponsored by this body. This year, as in the past, the council has determined admission fees and the organization of athletic events.

In the beginning of each school year, student members of the council are called upon to assist in the elections of faculty advisers by counting ballots. For the duration of the council's existence, it provides an opportunity for teachers and students to discuss problems common to both and to arrive at amicable solutions. That the council is an example of democracy in Lawrence High School, is borne out by its record of achievements.

LUTES AND FLUTES

THE Lawrence Band emerged from its wraps last fall fresh from its victory at the New York State Competitions. In preparation for the competitions, the band members put in much hard work individually and as a group. They were granted a 5-A rating by the state officials in addition to written commendation from the State Education Department.

Our band upheld its tradition of performing during half-times throughout the football season. These exciting performances heightened the school spirit at the games and rendered them more enjoyable.

By placing an unusually high percentage of musicians in the Fall County Music Festivals, the name of Lawrence was talked of in Long Island's music circles. During the long winter months the social season began, along with plans for the coming elections, concerts, parades, and competitions. Winter, fall, and spring, the band kept active to liven up our school year.

The annual dance was the best ever, with gala decorations, bands and the best in live talent. The Christmas party, with contests and prizes, was also a great success and was a fitting preface to the holiday vacation. These are just two of the band's numerous activities.

The band was directed by Mr. Konstantine Epp and Mr. Arthur Jones, and had as its officers Linda Lipton, the first girl president in the band's history; Steve Cagan, drum major; Frank Mazza, vice-president; Susan Rashap, secretary; and Michael Schekter, treasurer. Arthur Emisig, William Sentnor, Susan Berkowitz, and Arthur Shulman were the vitally important band managers.

Among the many community events at which the band performed were the dedication of the new Cedarhurst Village Hall, the Little League and Memorial Day Parades, and the Lawrence High School Pep Rally.

There was close co-ordination between the band, the orchestra and the twirlers in their scholastic and social activities. Taken as a whole, this group experience provided a sound and satisfying educational approach to musical problems on the high school level.

COMPETITION FOR THE PHILHARMONIC

WITH the conclusion of the school year 1958-1959, members of the Lawrence High School Orchestra can look back at a successful season. State Competition honors—a three-year A rating—provided the thrust needed to commence activities. Led by the officers, Arthur Shulman, president; Mary Ann Sarappa, vice president; Barbara Milo, secretary, and Levi Watson, treasurer; the ensemble set its sights on high musical goals. Mr. Arthur Jones and Mr. Konstantine Epp led and encouraged the study of classics from Bach to Tchaikowsky, leaving plenty of time for moderns.

The musical projects were conducted democratically, with weekly challenges to insure that each student was progressing on schedule. Several came out with high ratings on New York State's Music Honor Roll: Ruth Glasser, cellist, winner of WQXR musical auditions; Steven Cagan, tubist; and George Gelles, hornist.

The Orchestra gave those students whose interests were of a musical nature an opportunity to continue their training and to gain experience working as a group. Highlighting the year were the Spring Concerts, assemblies, and grade school events, in which the works of Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, and Mozart were feaured. The dances and picnic were the gala events of the year and the graduation performance brought the season to an end.

WHIRLING BATONS

ALL eyes are focussed upon an empty stage. Silence pervades. Suddenly a group of peppy young girls runs forward. The twirlers are performing once again! First seen are the leaders of the squad, Captain Barbara Milo and Co-Captains Terry Leone, Joan Williams, Bonnie Boutetl, and Catharine Germano. Working behind the scenes is their faculty adviser, Mr. Arthur Jones.

As in every field, the success of the twirlers may be attributed to the long hours of practice they put in. This in turn helps develop a good sense of rhythm and absolute precision. With these they are able to provoke school spirit, adding enthusiasm and color to athletic and musical events.

The activities of the twirlers are not limited to school functions. Active participants in community affairs, they display their talents in the Firemen's Anniversary parties, Memorial Day parades, and Little League events.

Whirling their batons, the girls also compete in several contests held in Long Island. They have always received high recognition in these annual, state-wide competitions.

To sixty talented, well co-ordinated, smiling girls add six co-captains and one captain, mix in long hours of practice and what do you have? The Lawrence High School twirlers, of course!

Head twirler Barbara Milo.

SING HEAVENLY MUSES

ALL singers in Lawrence High School musical groups strive for membership in the Mixed Chorus.

Like the other singing groups, this chorus is divided into four basic sections. This year, representatives of each were honored with recognition in various competitions. Robert Mazza and Joyce Sparks were selected for All State Chorus. The following students also were awarded with membership in the All State Sectional: Sopranos — Judi Bauman, Susan Ferber, and Madeline Rosen; Tenors —Fred Cohen and Robert Mazza; Basses— Mike Berkowitz, Clifford Brody, Alan Kalter, Mike Rothenberg, and David Weissman; Altos—Joyce Sparks and Johanna Mazza.

The Mixed Chorus meets every day; it is considered a school subject for which credit is duly given. Besides the work that it does in school, it stages various performances for the Golden Age Club and the Parent-Teachers Association. In addition, the chorus treats the student body to a Christmas Show each year. Selections from The Messiah by Handel constituted part of this year's program.

The Mixed Chorus elected Joyce Sparks, president; Michael Rothenberg, vice-president; Adrianne Laye, secretary; and Marie Polerra, treasurer. Instructed and led by Miss Dorothy Garver and Mr. Anthony Pollera, the chorus had a most successful year.

VOCAL GYMNASTICS

THE second step on the choral road is the General Chorus. The all-girl group consists of sophomores, most of whom have previously participated in Freshman Chorus. Mr. Anthony G. Pollera, director of the chorus, leads them in various selections, creating, during the process, perfect harmony. Voice exercises, drills, and tape recordings are among the methods used to achieve the desired effects. Records made of rehearsals and performances are available to chorus members and anyone else interested.

At Christmas time the group joined with the Mixed Chorus to chant yuletide melodies for the annual holiday concert. In addition to seasonal songs, this program included "Lift up Your Heads" from The Messiah and "Lift Thine Eyes" from The Elijah. Other performances were put on for the Golden Age Club and the All-State Chorus Competition, as well as for Lawrence High School on Award Night.

More than just a group of singers with good voices, the sophomore girls of the General Chorus are diligent workers striving to enlarge their musical abilities and attain a higher understanding of the works that they perform.

TRAINING FOR HARMONY

TO weld the undeveloped, untrained voices of underclassmen into a group of harmonious sounds is the primary purpose of the Freshman Chorus. Under the direction of Miss Dorothy Garver and Mr. Anthony Pollera, the group meets three times a week to prepare for entrance into Mixed Chorus, their ultimate goal. The different sections—alto, soprano, tenor and bass—practice singing in unison. In this they have indeed been successful.

WINTER OLYMPICS

LAWRENCE has done it again! Newly incorporated into the school's extra-curricular program is the Ice Skating Club, under the direction of Mr. Frank Kriz and Mr. Herbert Swords. Open to any student with either a flair for or a desire to participate in the sport, the club provides many enjoyable experiences. Taken to the Flushing Meadow Park via bus, members spend more than two hours every other week engaging in this invigorating activity.

For those experienced skaters the Ice Skating Club provides an excellent opportunity to practice their skills. Those who have not quite reached this stage are assisted by Mr. Kriz and Mr. Swords, who, so it seems, are wonderful skaters.

DRAMATIC WORKSHOP

UNDER the direction of its officers, Judy Azaria, president; Judi Bauman, vice-president; Arthur Schulman, secretary; Barry K. Schwartz, treasurer; Phyllis Davidoff, librarian; and the guidance of Mr. Russo, the Buskin members enjoyed a fruitful and entertaining year.

The Buskineers learned about stage lighting, scenery, props, make-up, and costumes. During the meetings, various members put on original skits, monologues, pantomimes, and characterizations much to the enjoyment and benefit of those watching. To broaden their knowledge of the art several discussions were held concerning the finer points of the theatre.

The highlight of the season was the annual Buskin Tournament, held on December 11 in the Lawrence High School auditorium. Hard work plus a great deal of time and effort was put into the production of the four one-act plays and one musical. For their Theories have more meaning when verified by individual experiment.

THE Space Age has created a new drive toward the scientific fields. Science is a vast field, once left to experts, but now awakening in every person an interest beyond ordinary mundane vagaries.

The established purpose of the Biology Club it to acquaint the student and make him more familiar with practical biological experimentation. The first experiment which was completed by these struggling, young scientists was that of cross breeding fruit flies for genetic observations. Much time and patience were devoted to a test with Gibberilic Acid. It is one of a new family of chemicals used and its effect on various plants was added to the students stock of information.

This year's program featured some fascinating trips including a visit to the Pathological Laboratories of Bellevue Hospital and field trips to the Museum of Natural History. Extra audio visual aids, such as a film on "Work of Hospital Technicians" were viewed by the club.

In order to derive the greatest benefit from these activities, the group is restricted to a small number. Two factors are taken into consideration for admission in this club. The student must evidence a real interest in this field and he must have achieved an honor average of ninety per cent in biology Thus students who were both willing and capable of good work were brought together as a well organized unit.

Along with the enthusiastic guidance of Mr. Richard Runge, the following elected officers directed the activities of the club: Gilbert Hersh, president; Lawrence Weinstein, vice president; Sheila Winkleman, secretary; and Judy Bauman, treasurer.

ARISTOTLE

FOR those students whose interest in chemistry extended beyond the limit set in class and for those students who wanted to apply classroom knowledge to actual experimentation, the Chemistry Club was formed. Led by Mr. David Norstedt, teacher of chemistry, the group was able to delve into this field of study.

First on the year's agenda was the election of officers. Chosen were Robert Kass, president; John Friedberg, vice-president; Richard Mayeri, secretary; and James Oestreich, treasurer.

A number of interesting projects were undertaken. Films, among which was one about molecules, were especially enjoyed. A lecturer spoke to members about career possibilities in chemistry. Many students began individual projects, experiments, and demonstrations. These undertakings gave the participents an opportunity to work by themselves and develop their own individual ideas.

Mr. Norstedt adds "a" to "b" and gets—"pu."

In this way an emphasis is placed on creativity which is so important to success in the physical sciences, but which is almost completely lacking in the usual classroom study.

The Chemistry Club met once a week. This was in addition to the five periods of discussion and one of laboratory during the day. Thus material not required in class but important as general knowledge could be learned and practiced.

In this way students who plan to go on in chemistry in college were given an opportunity to get a head start on their classmates.

PYTHAGOREAN THEORISTS

DID you know that .4999 to infinity equals .5? That 12 can be used as a basis of our numerical system? That $x_2 = ay$? Such were the problems discussed and debated upon in the Math Club. This year, as in recent years, its faculty adviser was Mr. George Glenday. Under his leadership and through planning committees, a full program of group discussion and participation was accomplished. The officers were the following: Norman Katz, president; Jane Gilbert, vice president; David Herzig, treasurer; and Letty Edelman, secretary. Open to juniors and seniors whose math averages were at least 90, the organization supplemented classroom work.

Math Club meetings served well for the presentation and discussion of the brain teaser type problems, often those presented to the Math Team in their meets. In addition to this, instruction in the various applications of the slide rule was given. Guest speakers, as well as movies, provided interesting programs for members.

OPEN to all sophomore geometry students who possess honor averages in the subject was the Tenth Year Math Club. Under the guidance of Mr. Daniel Burlingame and Mr. Anthony Guiliano, members were able to increase their knowledge and understanding of mathematics by solving practical problems. Planning and executing the year's program were the officers: president, Susan Meyer; vice president, Ricki Germansky; treasurer, Clifford Weinstein; and secretary, Bette Bloom.

Contributing to a successful and enjoyable agenda were several interesting projects and programs. Dr. Berg of Far Rockaway lectured at the meeting of January 15. The remainer of the sessions centered about topics related to geometry, as well as some unusual problems. The latter was aimed at preparing members for Math Team tryouts in their junior year.

MATHLETES

THE Math team was composed of a number of "mental athletes" whose exploits suggest that a meeting of minds can be as competitive as a meeting of muscles. Under the supervision of Mr. Glenday and Mr. Burlingame, and with Norman Katz as captain, the team was highly successful against opposing Nassau schools.

Operating under the well-known axiom that practice makes perfect, members of the team met regularly to solve mathematical problems requiring original thinking.

Members of the regular squad were Mike Green, Mike B. Mosher, Norman Katz, Eric Jaffe, Robert Weisman, Jules Kabat, Richard Pollack, and Arthur Jungreis.

HEBREW CLUB

IN order to instill in young people a better understanding of Hebrew culture, Israel's position in world affairs, and the Hebrew language itself, the Hebrew Club was formed. Headed by the faculty adviser, Mr. Leo Haber, and the officers, Joyce Selter, president; Richard Berg, vice-president; Vivian Kantor, secretary; and Edward Berg, treasurer; and Susan Rackmil, program chairman; they partook in a full program.

The Hebrew Club meetings convened on a monthly basis. Membership was open to all students of Hebrew provided that they had a genuine interest in the language.

Each meeting commenced in Hebrew. A summation of happenings in Israel was then related and discussed. Following this there were speakers, movies, or Israeli dancing.

EL ATENEO

"SE declara la sesion." So began the bi-monthly meetings of the Spanish Club. Its purpose was two-fold: to acquaint students with Spanish culture and to have them utilize this modern tongue. Miss Sadie Posner advised the third-year club, whose officers were Sheila Winkelman, president, and Michael Green, secretary-treasurer.

Singing Spanish songs and discussing national painters in Spanish were among activities on the agenda. These activities were followed by games such as bingo, telephone, and hangman, played, of course, in Spanish.

At Christmas time members participated in a piñata party, at which a grab-bag, songs, and refreshments were enjoyed. A picnic, an introduction to Spanish food at a Spanish restaurant, and a trip to the Spanish museum brought the year's activities to an end.

LATIN COHORTS

ONCE again Caesar's followers organized themselves into a club to learn more about Gaius Caeser and the ancient Roman culture. Along with Miss Mabel Leavitt as faculty adviser, the Cohorts elected the following students to coordinate the activities of the club: Marsha Rubin, president; Susan Dublin, vice-president; Barbara Rubin, secretary; and Steve Schmerzler, treasurer.

At each meeting a different member of the club is given the opportunity of presenting an original and informative program connected in some way with the Latin language. A typical Cohort's meeting may consist of a tic-tac-toe game involving Latin terms, a crossword puzzle composed of Latin words, plays presenting myths or legends, or films depicting Roman times.

Thus through these meetings Latin comes alive. Diversified uses of Latin can be shown, making the study of Latin more interesting.

LATIN SENATUS

THE Latin Senatus promotes interest among the third year Latin students and, through a greater understanding of Latin and Roman customs, encourages them to delve into the ideals and culture of their own society. The disciples of Cicero employed his language for such surprising purposes as tic-tac-toe and scrabble. Various club members prepared book reports on Roman life, read Roman mythology, and investigated derivatives of English words. Skits related to classroom topics provided entertainment as well as knowledge for participants and their audience. The following officers were called by titles appropriate to their positions in the hierarchy of the club; Larry Schwartz, consul; David Herzog, consul; Jeffrey Levine, scribe; and Leslie Feldman, quaestor. The domina, better known to laymen as faculty adviser, was Miss Mabel Leavitt.

PRIVATE SECRETARY

THE Secretarial Practice Club as its name implies, was an association of girls who wanted career preparation. Under the guidance of Mrs. Katherine B. Jack, the girls gained experience and knowledge. At the first meeting, the girls chose their officers: president, Philomena Longa; vice-president, Ann Raimondi; secretary, Judith Kenn; treasurer, Mary Jo Cittadino.

At club meetings, the girls took part in discussions particularly concerned with the behavior patterns prescribed by the business world. The girls went to New York City to visit various business concerns and learn about some of the techniques employed there.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

THE Clerical Practice Club was formed to help launch the girls into their future careers. The club tried to prepare its members for the stresses and strains they will encounter in the stimulating, but high competitive business world. It attempted to further acquaint each student with an advanced idea concerning the different phases of the work that will be encountered after graduation.

Activities centered around visits to various local and city businesses and talks from various speakers. The girls enjoyed sharing ideas and hopes during frequent discussions. Mrs. Giovenco was the club adviser.

CLERICAL CLUB

First row—Schecter, Rosenberg, Miller, Laye, Hellinger, Spector, Abrams. Second row—Alpern, Maffei, Balzer, Stern, Nathanson, Barris, Schneider, Schleiff.

DABBLING IN AESTHETICS

IN an effort to foster aesthetic appreciation in members, the Art Club participated in many enriching activities. Under the guidance of Mr. Ralph Pasquinucci, members were able to reach their objective—to display their work at the Peninsula Public Library. This accomplished, they took the traditional excursions to the Museum of Modern Art, the Greenwich Village art shows, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the Frick Collection.

The Art Club was open to junior and senior art students whose marks averaged 95 or above. The officers consisted of Adrianne Laye, president; Howard Spector, vice-president; Sheila Miller, secretary; and Wilma Hellinger, treasurer.

LETTERMEN

EACH school year enables many Lawrencians to engage in varsity sports as both players and managers. Through participation in any of the numerous sports offered, the athlete can obtain a varsity letter and automatic membership in the Varsity Club. This club is under the able guidance and direction of Athletic Department Head Mr. Jack Martilotta.

The activities of the club are many and varied, all of them dedicated to the service of the school. They range from the management of the refreshment concessions at football games to the sponsorship of an annual Scholarship Dance, the proceeds of which go to a Well-deserving senior athlete. The club also arranges for letter-sweaters to be awarded to those students who earn three varsity letters.

VARSITY CLUB

VIRGIL'S DISCIPLES

ROME wasn't built in a day, but neither was its native tongue. Proficiency in Latin also requires practice and skill. Fourth year students were able to increase their knowledge of Latin and Roman culture in their monthly meetings of the Virgil Club.

This club consisted of a select group of eight students who were members of the fourth year class. Because of the small membership, no officers were elected. Miss Mabel Leavitt supervised meetings, which took place during class periods.

The activities of the club included writing and translating poetry, some of which appeared in the literary supplement of the Mental Pabulum, and discussing Virgil, the famous Roman poet. The purpose was to learn more about Virgil, his works, and the customs of his people.

VIRGILIANS

First row—Grebin, Miss Leavitt, Peltz. Second row—Geller, Weltman, Sussman, Mennen, Katz, Norwalk.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

THE Francophiles of Lawrence eagerly awaited meetings of the French Club for good reason. The club, open to all French students with a sincere interest in the French language and culture, had an exciting agenda.

A trip they took to New York gave members a chance to taste the delicacies of a real French restaurant and to see a French movie where a supreme effort was made to disregard the English subtitles. The Christmas meeting was a large success. A "petite histoire" was told by Mr. Norman Plotkin, tic-tac-toe was played in French, French records were heard, French Christmas carols were sung, and refreshments were served. A gift was given to Mademoiselle Doris Benson in appreciation for her guidance and advice as faculty adviser.

Thanks to the planning of Barbara Rubin, president; Stephen Langfur, vice-president; Sheila Winkelman, secretary; and Marsha Rubin, treasurer; the French Club enjoyed an interesting and profitable year.

FRENCH CLUB

INTO THE ABSTRACT

NEWLY added to the school curriculum, as well as to the extra-curricular program, was a class in advanced topics in mathematics. Aimed specifically at providing a strong foundation for further college studies in math and engineering, the class enjoyed a successful semester.

The size of the class—10 persons—was a strong factor determining its effectiveness. Students met daily with Mr. George Glenday in a regular class period.

Also contributing to the course was the great flexibility of subject matter. Preparing for no state examination, students could proceed at their own rate, treating many phases of mathematics. Included were selected topics in analytic geometry, calculus, and number systems.

BRIDGE CLUB

First row—Kolbrener, Phaff, Weinberg, Saskin, Weisberg, Mr. Searle, Rosenfeld, Yaffe, Wechter, Kernis. Second row—Marcus, Shapiro, Schulman, Ettenson, Rieur, Goldberg, Schleiff, Nathanson, Altschul, Novack, Weisberg, Mende, Schnall, Beatch. Third row—Frankel, Goldfarb, Mandel, Pinquist, Kuhn, Braunstein, Kaplan, Weinstein, Frankel, Abrams, Young, Mevorach, Shapiro, Gutterman.

NO TRUMP

LAWRENCE HIGH SCHOOL "played its cards right" this year when it inaugurated the Bridge Club. By participating in this classical pastime, students were able to learn the game or improve their techniques. Mr. Earnest M. Sarle and Mr. Gregory H. Monahan led the group in its activities; cooperation was offered by Miss Fannie Longo and Mr. Richard Runge. Student heads were the following: president, Sandi Rosenfeld; vice president, Ina Weisberg; and secretary, Ginger Saskin.

Not only did the Bridge Club bring together the skills of many, but it encouraged mental competition among players. To develop this competition, inter-school contests were held. When this club is recognized as a duplicate tournament organization, members will be allowed to earn Masters Points, which are required in national contests.

Bridge playing is a popular activity on many college campuses. Knowledge of this game should therefore prove to be a great personal asset to students.

RED CROSS

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

THE inner feeling created in one who has given something very precious of his own to another individual is profound.

This year the club was led by Linda Lipton, chairman, and Linda Trubitz, secretary. Mrs. Gertrude Kuznitz served as faculty adviser for the organization. Also attending to executive work were the council members who represented Lawrence in the Nassau County Red Cross Chapter: Janet Rosenberg, Mary Jo Cittadino, and Paul Jacobsen.

Most noteworthy of its activities was the annual Red Cross drive. Red Cross representatives received the full cooperation of the student body when they collected generous contributions, which were used for the various functions of the American Junior Red Cross.

GETTING THE JUMP

THE honors course, meeting during the second semester twice weekly, began its program with the study of chemistry. Under the guidance of Mr. David Norstedt, much of what had seemed to be enigmas of college chemistry turned out to be very logical. Knowledge of the slide rule, which, according to last year's graduates, was a necessity in college, was acquired. Problems in analytical chemistry and experiments in atomic energy using the Geiger counter were performed.

Biology classes, led by Mr. Arthur Alexander and Mr. Richard Runge, constituted the second part of the series. With an emphasis on laboratory work, such topics as histology, bacteriology, and comparative anatomy were mastered.

ADVANCED SCIENCE CLASS

GOES 6-2

Although a mud-soaked gridiron hindered the ground advances of both teams, the Golden Tornadoes were able to defeat the Levittown eleven by a score of 6-0. A Sid Jackson interception was the sole tally of the afternoon for either side.

The running and passing of Jay Tavalaro combined with the over-all strength of the Tornadoes' defense, allowed Lawrence to down a highly rated Muhlenburg eleven. Frank Ashby led the Lawrence defensive team while Conrad Cabobianco added to the victory with some fine running.

Touchdowns by Jay Tavalaro, Pat DelGais, Harold Williams, Sid Jackson and James Jackson, and three conversions by Leslie Avent enabled Lawrence to maul East Meadow by a 33-6 count. It was Buff and Blue's highest scoring afternoon of the season. A strong Lawrence line allowed only one late touchdown and helped lift the Tornadies' season record to 5-2.

A highly polished Lawrence eleven completely outclassed the White Plains Tigers in gaining its sixth and final victory of the season. Determined running by Fred Griffin, brilliant pass-receiving by Harold Williams, and deceptive play-making by Jay Tavalaro contributed to the success. Following the kick-off, Lawrence swept 82 yards in five plays for a touchdown. This drive featured the running of Sid and James Jackson and Pat DelGais.

Spirited team play and a fine job of coaching by Mr. Jack Martilotta can be attributed to the strong showing of Lawrence High School's 1958 football team. Captain Sidney Jackson and Co-captains Lewis Sussman and Harold Avent also deserve credit for a job well done.

J. V. FOOTBALL

THE aim of the Junior Varsity is to train and give valuable experience to those boys who will comprise the Varsity in future years.

The Junior Varsity, coached jointly by Mr. Irv Mondschein and Mr. J. C. Hillen, turned in a commendable record this year—4-2-2. More important, however, is the fact that it developed several boys who will eventually become the mainstays of the Varsity.

At the beginning of the season, the Junior Varsity was captained and quarterbacked by Henry DeJoseph, but he was injured during the season and responsibility shifted to Richard Politano. Several of the other outstanding players were: August Jackson, Robert Dorn, James Lombardi, Salvatore Champi, Mike Vota, James Stout, and Maurice Bogas.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

FROM the record of wins and losses compiled by the Freshman football squad in the 1958 season, it can easily be concluded that in the not too distant future Lawrence High School will be able to honestly boast of one of the finest teams in the league.

Expertly coached by Mr. Charles Martone and Mr. Gabriel Uhlar, the team won four sweeping victories, highlighted by the defeat of Long Beach 27-5, and then Hewlett 40-0. The two losses which rounded out the teams 4-2 record were suffered at the hands of Freeport 7-14 and East Meadow 0-20.

In the years to come the Tornadoes can expect a good deal of support from Frosh players, Ronald Kupferman, Joseph Schmidt, Louis Paccilli, and Richard Mollo.

VARSITY

THE 1959 Cagers of Lawrence, directed by two year veteran coach, J. C. Hillin, once again, this year, demonstrated their spirit and desire to win. In most of these contests the final outcome was determined by a gap of no more than two to five points.

The won and lost record of Lawrence is not one to make an L. H. S. rooter gloat with happiness, but anyone who followed the team witnessed a group that put its heart into every game and deserves the highest honor we at Lawrence can bestow upon them —our gratitude for making a gallant effort.

Even though Lawrence finished the year with a mediocre record, i.e. 8 wins and 8 losses, it is safe to say that if Lawrence had an additional ten points to use any way they wanted to, we would have had a championship team. The Oceanside game near the end of the season was lost by two points, 76-74, and in another game decided by points we lost to Massapequa, 56-54, and in a third close game we lost to Central 57-54. Lawrence captured a few of the close games too. The

BASKETBALL

Cagers beat Uniondale 73-71, Levittown 64-62, and Massapequa 82-80.

Jimmy Wise, Gilbert Kaplan, David Katsky, and Harold Williams were the outstanding senior players for the Cagers this year. They were backed by Jimmy Friedman, Bill Schacter, and Howard Krauchaur, who are juniors and will form the nucleus of next year's team.

During the season the Lawrence rooters became familiar with several boys including Richard Lerner, Lloyd Schnell, Thomas Levine, Ronald Cohen, and Eric Jaffe.

High scorer for Lawrence was Jimmy Wise, who averaged 15 points a game. He was followed by Gilbert Kaplan and Jimmy Friedman who both averaged 11 points a game. Third place in the scoring honors went to Harold Williams who averaged 10 points per game. David Katsky and Howard Krauchaur both averaged 7 points a game.

This year's team turned in a favorable record and exhibited a high caliber of play during the season demonstrating an undying spirit and desire to win.

J. V. BASKETBALL

THE Lawrence High School Junior Varsity Basketball Team completed the 1958-59 season with a highly commendable 12-6 record. Under the direction of Coach Charles Martone, the Jayvees finished in third place, only one game in back of the second place team. The squad, composed mainly of sophomores, was ably assisted by the fine playmaking of Joel Kupferman, and the sharpshooting and strong rebounding of Richard Berg and Miles Arber. The starting five was rounded out by sophomores Richard Politano and Gunther Albrecht, both of whom show promise for the future.

The fine record of the J. V. seems to indicate that in the not too distant future Lawrence may once again have a championship team.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

ANOTHER winning season is the picture of Lawrence High's freshman basketball team. This is easily seen in the 8 wins—2 losses scored by the combined effort of the team and its coach.

The fine work of coach, Frank Reich, certainly showed in this year's tournaments. Along with him, Doren, the high scorer for Lawrence with an average of 10.2 points per game, the rebounding of Kuperman and aid of Granat, a spark was set to the team which carried throughout the season.

Statistically Lawrence's opponents have been at thirty point deficits in more than half the games, again showing the great shooting and equally effective defense of our players.

VARSITY BASEBALL

THE Lawrence High School Varsity Baseball team is headed for another fine season of play under the expert eye of Mr. Herman Wild, the squad's colorful coach. The boys reported three weeks before spring vacation began so that they would be in top shape for the opening game.

Eric Grondahl, the team's pitching mainstay, and James Jackson, another strong hurler, figure to be important factors in Lawrence's bid for first place. Last year, these boys registered victories over such teams as East Meadow, Valley Stream Central, Hewlett, and Far Rockaway.

The infield positions will be vied for by Sid Jackson, Joel Kupferman, Tony Pesiri, Frank Tiso, and George Greller. Jackson was outstanding last year at shortstop in addition to possessing one of the team's highest batting averages. Pesiri, who played a limited amount of second base last season, now has the experience necessary to land that job on a full-time basis. Tiso, Greller, and Kupferman, newcomers to this year's squad, figure to make it a real battle for the remaining positions.

Although his outfield plans are not complete as yet, Coach Wild has picked Jimmy Wise and Vincent Ruggieri as two of his three starting outfielders. Wise, who alternated between pitching and fly-chasing last year, promises to do much of the same once again this year. Ruggieri, whose big bat greatly added to the team's run-production last year, is on his way to another strong season.

The team appears strong in every position and possesses an awesome array of batsmen. These two factors make the Golden Tornadoes a safe bet for the first division and perhaps even a county playoff berth if they can perform to the best of their potential.

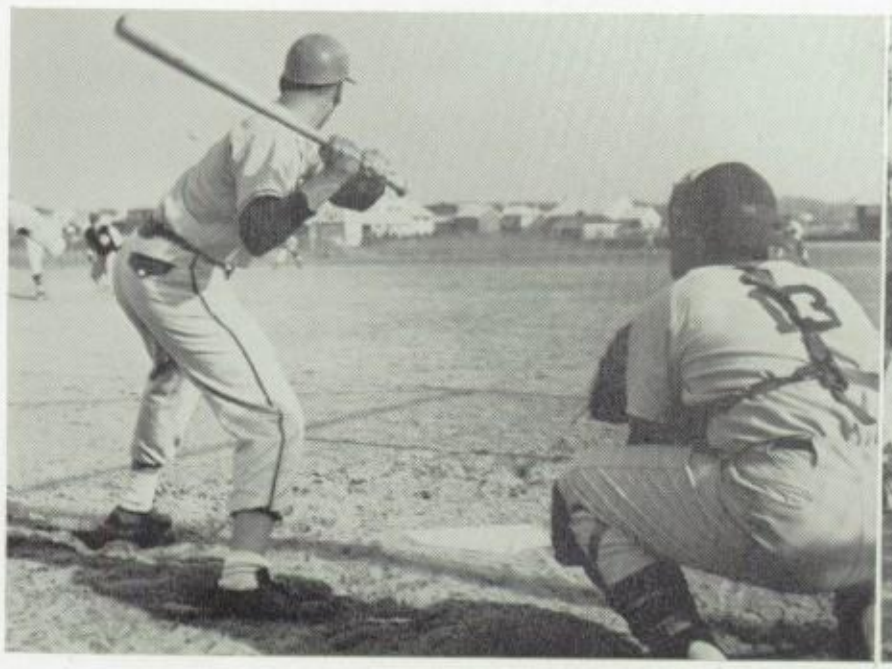
Kneeling—Kavanaugh, Dorn, Lederman, Figeroa, Langel, Nardio, Samuelson, Ahlbrecht, Karp.
Standing—Stout, Pacilli, DeJoseph, Tudda, Goldstein, Engle, Gast, Groller, Semel, Kupferman, Avent, Mr. Martone.

J. V. BASEBALL

STRIKE three! You're out. That's the call of the umpire as Lawrence High School's J. V. team chalks up another victory. This year's team shows promise of following the fine example set by last year's outstanding record of 14 wins with only 3 losses. As in previous years Mepham, Massapequa, and East Meadow should prove to be Lawrence's toughest rivals. Additional competition can also be expected from Sewanhaka, which was added to our league this year; however, Lawrence has the players and the spirit and a good season is anticipated.

Under the guidance of Mr. Charles Martone the twenty-one players, ten sophomores and eleven freshmen, composing the J. V. practiced throughout their Easter vacation to prepare for their opening game with Sewanaka on April ninth. Following this contest the team continued to play in championship style and compiled an outstanding record.

And here's the pitch.



Sid Jackson prepares for a blast.

TRACK TEAM UNDEFEATED UNDER

THE school's sincerest gratitude and appreciation go to three year veteran coach Mr. Irving Mondschein. In the few years that Mr. Mondschein has been with us at Lawrence, he has brought the track team from the cellar position among section 8 squads to the very top of that division. The handwork, intense interest and guidance of Mr. Mondschein have been the keynotes of success.

Unlike prior years the track season now encompasses the complete school year, comprising both winter indoor and spring outdoor phases. This winter's indoor season was a great triumph for the team and may be held as indicative of the coming spring competition.

The Golden Tornado cindermen swept all dual meet competition and culminated their fine showing with their relay team taking first place in the Long Island Invitation Mile Relay which was held at Madison Square Garden. The relay team, which consisted of Jerry Blavis, Bobby Lundell, Robert Moss, and anchorman Fred Griffin, defeated such other participating squads as Oceanside, Uniondale, and Mepham.

This spring season promises as great if not even greater success for the swift tornadoes especially since the extra strength of several of last year's squad members can be counted on after the finale of the basketball schedule. The squad is unusually well balanced in every event and displays outstanding strength in a few special fields. Three seniors, Harry Williams, a hurdler, David Katsky, a high jumper, and Bob Lundell, a half-miler head up the list of specialists. All have had several years of varsity experience and are capable of all-state honors.

Lawrence's all around balance is illustrated by Harold Avent and Mike Berkowitz in the shotput, Al Griffin in the 100 and 200 yard sprints, Mike Karachiola in the half-mile, Jerry Blavis and Ronald Stallings in the pole-vault, Fred Griffin and Bob Moss in the quarter run, Fred Bryant in the mile and Bill Schacter, Les Avent and Jim Freedman in the hurdles.

FRESHMAN TRACK

After a strong season last year the new freshman team again appears to contain a wealth of material. Pee Wee Jackson heads up the list of strong runners competing in the 100 and 220 yard runs and the relay. Gary Rizzo and Joe Goldfarb in the 880, Martin Zuckerman and Richard Mollo in the shotput, Steve Schlein, Pat Sorrentino and Mike Richter in the hurdles, Wes Settles and Gary Rizzo in the high jump and Mike Caparelli and Charles Jordan in the pole vault comprise the balance of the team's strength. The team, under the coaching of Mr. Mondschein and Mr. Hillin, practiced hard and achieved many triumphs.

GOLF TEAM

LAST year the Lawrence High School Golf Team suffered through one of the worst seasons it has ever encountered. Aside from very rare instances such as Paul Berko's 78 against Hewlett and Al Geller's 13-2 record, the team did not fare well. This year, however, will be a different story. With the return of such tournament hardened veterans as Don Chimenti, Al Geller, Bob Wisan and Paul Berko, the outlook for the coming campaign looks very bright. Mr. James Mattison is the team's new coach.

BOWLING

TENNIS TEAM

THE 1958 Tennis Team, under the direction of Mr. Frank Cameron, went undefeated, thus retaining first place honors in the South Shore Athletic League. The racket squad, supported by a bevy of fine players, defeated each of the following schools twice: Baldwin, Levittown, Massapequa, Mepham, Oceanside, and Sewanhaka.

The Varsity consisted of Laury Arnstein, first singles; Norman Katz, second singles; and Andy Winkelman, third singles. The doubles partners were Michael B. Mosher and Noel Corpuel, first doubles; and Richard and Edward Berg, second doubles.

GOLF TEAM
Kneeling—Spencer, Brussell. Standing—Hammer, Kalico, Berko, Mr. Mattison, Brown, Celler, Wisan.

BOWLING TEAM

MR. WHITMAN'S bowling team of 1959 is a forecast of many good seasons in the years to come. Without one senior on the team, a record of 33-37 was compiled out of 70 matches.

Individually, however, the boys came through with a few startling figures. Mike Green, a junior, high man with a 165 average, bowled a 625 series, the highest on the Island. Ron Heft finished sixth in the individual scoring for the South Shore. Also helping the team finish fourth in the league were Frank Mazza, Don Snider, and Mike Alper. Future years may expect a very challenging Lawrence team.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

IN the Five Towns area and especially at Lawrence High School, the bowling fever runs very high. Intramural bowling leagues have become well established at Lawrence in the past few years; however, this year's league was the largest and most successful to date. Every Monday and Thursday throughout the winter and spring seasons, better than two hundred of Lawrence's finest bowlers took to the alleys at Falcaro's. More people participate in these leagues than in any extra-curricular function, and for this reason the bowling league is an integral part of Lawrence's athletic program. A vote of thanks is due to Mr. Frank Whitman under whose guidance this year's bowling program was overwhelmingly successful.

Action displayed—Intramural Bowling.

In the bowling playoffs held on Thursday, February 27, the Vikings walked away with the bowling laurels. The members of this Sophomore team included Ronnie Benjamin, Roy Abrams, Jack Werman, Larry Gross and Mitch Goldberg.

In addition to the bowling program, intramural programs also existed in both basketball and baseball. Meeting on Saturday mornings throughout the winter season, basketball leagues, this year under the supervision of Mr. Gabriel Uhlar, presented junior and senior members of the student body with the opportunity to compete athletically during the winter. The contests this year were on the whole marked by avid team spirit as three teams contended for first place honors down to the final game. In the playoffs which followed the regular schedule the Butterheads were finally victorious.

Walking—Intramural Basketball.

With the advent of warmer weather, softball leagues became the focal point of participators in intramural programs. A freshman and sophomore league was established, while, for juniors and seniors, Mr. Uhlar again offered his services as coach and umpire.

As is the case with all programs their success can be attributed mainly to the devotion and ability of their sponsors. We are certainly fortunate to have someone like Mr. Uhlar with us at Lawrence.

GIRL'S SPORTS

CONCENTRATING on the "sound body" phase of the Greek philosophy of life, sports minded girls took part in many invigorating activities. Our physical education department, a member of the Long Island Girls Association, strove to promote sportsmanship and skill. Given proportionate points for each sport, active participants were able to receive the first award, 120 points; second award, 250 points; third award, 400 points; or the coveted Gold Key, 600 points.

With the cry "hit that bird" the badminton season was opened by Mrs. Muriel T. Barber. The birds went flying over the net with the badminton players skillfully keeping them in the air. This year there were 81 girls participating, with inter-school games to present a challenge with Sports Day right around the corner, an honor team was picked, which came out successfully in the fall tournament.

While some girls were playing badminton indoors, others were outside, practicing on the tennis courts. Miss Ellen Butler directed this popular activity. With inter-school games to keep the girls agile, the Lawrence tennis team surged ahead, having one of its most successful seasons, taking second place on Sports Day.

Resounding throughout the gymnasium Tuesday and Thursday afternoons in November and December were the enthusiastic shouts of the 260 girls participating in another popular sport, volleyball. There were new rules to be followed and new plays to be perfected. By hard work and effective teamwork, the class and honor teams competed well with other schools.

Basketball, as always, attracted a large number of girls. As baskets were made and scores increased, so did the girls' skill. For almost two months they practiced diligently. The big payoff, Sports Day, was a reward for the hard work.

Falcaro's Bowling Alley was the scene of great activity on Wednesday afternoons.

Bowling, an up and coming sport, was continued for two seasons. Under the direction of Mrs. Barber and Miss Butler, averages soared for many, the happy recipients of bowling trophies.

With the advent of spring, softball, archery, and tennis were the sports that kept the girls "in condition." As in the past, softball received its usual popularity. "With a cloud of dust and a mighty swing" Lawrence went on to score in Spring Sports Day. The tennis courts were once again swarmed with zealous players. Archery, a relatively new sport in Lawrence, also attracted many girls. Bull's eye is exactly what this scored in Lawrence's record and in the minds of the participating archers. So ended a successful season.

SPIRIT CONJURERS

LAWRENCE cheerleaders are an integral part of the sports scene. Their function is to promote and unify school spirit behind the football and basketball teams.

This year there was a radical change in tryouts and in the squad itself. To assure that those picked would be of the highest caliber, there were two tryouts. About eighty girls participated in the semi-finals. Those picked out of this group competed in the finals. The resulting squad consisted of ten girls and three substitutes. In previous years there had been two squads. The new system of having only one squad has worked out to the satisfaction of all involved.

Miss Louise Camillo was the adult adviser, under whose guidance the two co-captains, Jane Gilbert and Gail Avidon, directed the squad.

Since the cheerleader represents the school both at home and away, her conduct must be that which is considered exemplary by the school. These responsibilities are taken seriously by the cheerleaders and are considered an important factor in their selection. The enthusiasm and vitality which the cheerleaders displayed was reflected by the spirit and sportsmanship of the entire school.

of you and your classmates upon your school life achieve immortality in a carefully planned and executed yearbook.

From the arid desert of Arizona, and the sultry green island of Puerto Rico, to the snow-blanketed slopes of Northern New England, we have traveled, happy and proud to have been an instrument in the translating into print, the humor pathos, excitement, and sentiment found in the campus life of over seventy-five colleges and preparatory schools.

As former members of yearbook staffs in our school days, we bring into our professional duties a real understanding of the many problems confronting each yearbook editor.

FROM THE ORACLE

HERE our great prognostic skill can display itself in all its glory. Instead of a last will, the Oracle herewith presents for posterity the truth about the class of '59 and whither they are headed. All colleges subject to change without notice.

Someday I'd like to see someone vote against Vic Hazan for anything. At Syracuse, he'll have only 13 cousins. Why he'll practically be alone. Give Judy Azaria, who will take up residence at Brandeis, a 6 8″ math teacher to carry her books and her Buskin cup. To Harold Avent—who'll bide his time at Michigan State, a check-list to see if any school forgot him. I think Mike B. Mosher, who is trying to get into Yale, deserves a book, "How to Write Odes in Iambic Pentameter" (Siegfried Daly), and a middle name.

Send Jeff Auerbach, who will take up practice at Lehigh, an instructorship at the Powers Charm School and a quiet library to liven up. To Lord Jeff Norwalk, aimed for Columbia, a lumber forest stocked with cane-wood. When Lewis Sussman decides which school he'll accept (at last count it's Colgate), send him a fault and an all-day sucker—no one should be perfect. I know this next is impossible—but find Mike Rothenberg an enemy at Columbia, or, just as hard, find one for Sheila Winkelman at Antioch. Steve Langfur needs nothing but a 10-round trip ticket to Greenwich Village and back to Amherst.

Give Jane Gilbert escalators going up those hills at Cornell. If you give Joan Ostrow any more beauty, Venus will have her assassinated. Donate the Columbia Columbian and the Dartmouth Aegis to Paul Schwartz and Richard "Clad in Green" Edelson. I think Judy Mahl and Dorothy Heid, the intended of Brandeis, and William and Mary, respectively, would more than anything else like to see a January issue of the Mental Pabulum. Don't let Dave Katsky, Columbia '63, and Gil Kaplan, Duke '63, forget how to use their hands—either on court or anywhere else they might need them. And I think the "living-doll" Jeff Prager, aiming at Philadelphia Textile Institute, is old enough to drive a regular-sized car now. Send Eric Jaffe a book entitled "How to Build Confidence and Improve the Ego," so he can be a BMOC (Big Man on Campus) at Cornell too. Give Barbara (to Cornell) and Marsha (to Barnard) Rubin as much success alone as they each had alone while together. If you give Adrianne Laye any more beauty at college, she will be sued for breaking the anti-monopoly laws. I only wish Sue Kolbrener, aimed for Wheaton, a sharper spade to dig deeper into us.

Reduce the number of girls who have crushes on Mike Geller, who is proceeding to Dartmouth, and Lewis "Blue-Card" Feldstein, marching on Brown, to 42 (apiece). Send Jane Schindel, and Stephanie Rosenberg, our Madison Avenue aces, a few more new stores to sell ads to. Send John Weltman, who will take command at Johns Hopkins, an age to be literary dictator of. And give Ruth Glasser, at Juilliard, a green thumb to distract her cello-playing. Give next year's Pab editors a calendar. Make the rumors come true that Walt Disney is thinking of making Mr. Ahner's Physics book into a full-length cartoon. Thanks to Mr. Norstedt, Mr. Runge, and Mr. Alexander for their help to those of us in 9th period 302. Thanks to Mr. Glenday from the Calculus boys (and girls). Our everlasting gratitude to Mr. Daly, our advisor, and to Miss, Mr., or Mrs. M., A., B., G., U. & U., N., P., S., T., R., D., C., E., and everyone else (space prohibits printing full name). Thanks to Mr. Simmonds and Mr. Frank "Figure-Eight" Kriz for guiding our first three years, and bless Mr. Joseph "There's Hope Yet" Page and Miss Hartman for bravely trying to make our last a happy one. We leave the Guidance Department and the whole school with only one thought—the Class of '60 has 500.

Congratulations to These Students Who Have Maintained An Above-Ninety Average

The ending of a school year.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Now at the close of this, our 1959 Lawrencian, we would like to express our appreciation to all those student and faculty members who participated in producing this annual.

We also give our utmost thanks to Mr. Maurice Sameroff whose photography has been most instrumental in the success of this yearbook and to Mrs. Mary Kelly of the Robert W. Kelly Publishing Corporation for her aid in layout and production.

We are also deeply indebted to those who have done a particularly fine job: our literary editors for correcting and polishing the articles submitted by their staff, our photography staff for turning our photographic dreams into a reality, and our business, advertising and circulation managers for putting us on a "pay-as-you-go basis."

We would also like to express our appreciation to our senior write-up editor for his brilliant witticisms. . . . To our art editors for their reliability. . . . To the typists for their keyboard magic and the utmost in speed and accuracy. . . . To those in the homeroom who have done all the little things that mean so much. And finally, to Mr. Ray B. Merriam, faculty advisor, and Miss Dorothy Johnson, assistant faculty advisor, without whose assistance the Lawrencian would not be the quintessence of perfection that it is.
